FOUNTAIN INN.

LIGHT-STREET, BALTIMORE.

M. BARR.

HAVING based the above extensive, well known and long established HOTEL, forms his friends and friends of the house and the public generally, that he has had the house thoroughly repaired and fitted up in a very superior manner with entire new furniture, and is now prepared with every requisite, throughout every department of his establishment to make his customers confident.

There are several pleasant parlors fitted up with chambers, attached, having a private entrance for the accommodation of families.
The location of this Hotel is most advantageous to gentlemen visiting the city on business, being near both the wharves and Market street—however it is known to almost every gentleman who comes to Baltimore by the sea, and has been formerly a favorite stopping place with them.

The proprietor trusts it will become a favorite house again with gentlemen from the bay, when it is known that the house is in as fine order as it has been, and he feels confident (will generally call and see the alterations and improvements made, that a portion of himself that as far as attention and exertion can go toward accommodation, nothing will be wanting to produce comfort.

Terms of board $1 per day.

within three miles of North-East, and six miles from Elkton. From both places there is water communication every day to the subscriber, and when the Delaware Canal is finished, which is expected this summer, a water connection will be opened to Philadelphia. The fall of water is fifty feet sufficient to run several of the year to drive ten thousand spindles—several churches within a short distance. For all business it is not surpassed by any place in the United States. Stone on the place sufficient to erect all the necessary buildings, and a race already made. Forty acres in wood, and at a small expense, thirty or forty acres of meadow may be made. For terms, apply to the subscriber in Baltimore, or to Joseph Harlan, Esq. near the premises, who will show them.

Cloth Manufacturing, Fulling, Colouring, &c.

THE Subscriber respectfully informs the Public, that he continues to card wool, carded into rolls, or manufactured into cloths, cassimeres, or linkets, at his MILLS, seven miles above Elkton, with competent workmen to attend to the same. For those whom it is most convenient, wool will be received at the store of Messrs. Wingate and Manly, Elkton,—Benjamin W. Harris, Back-Creek,—Alfred C. Nowland, Cecilton,— and returned to the several places, either in rolls or manufactured as directed.

A list of terms and prices will be left at the Store of each of the above mentioned gentlemen, who are authorized to settle for the same.

Persons wishing to Barter or exchange their wool for cloth, &c. can be supplied by calling at the Factory, where there is a considerable quantity ready prepared.

From a long continuance in the business, comment is deemed unnecessary.

AGRICULTURE.

In order to disseminate extensively the numerous advantages which flow from the development of new resources and valuable improvements in the agricultural world, it is reasonable to presume that a medium for the accumulation and distribution of practical knowledge in Pennsylvania, most needful of the first importance. A Periodical publication devoted to these purposes, if conducted with spirit and industry, cannot prove otherwise than eminently useful.

Under these impressions, the publishers have determined on offering to the agricultural community "THE FARMER'S MAGAZINE," as a repository of useful information; satisfied they cannot render to their country a more valuable service, or better contribute to its permanent prosperity, than in subserving, as they do, its agricultural interests.

In furtherance of their views, the publishers solicit original contributions on Agriculture, Horticulture, Rural and Domestic Economy, &c. and the co-operation of agriculturists and the friends of agriculture throughout the country.

PROSPECTUS.

THE FARMER'S MAGAZINE.

Is designed to contain information drawn from authentic sources, relative to the improvement and management of remarkable Farms, sources of manure, number and kind of Stock, farming utensils, &c. &c. &c. &c. &c. &c. &c. and descriptions of several novel and critical notices and reviews of such publications as may tend to the interest of the husbandman; improvements in the breed of domestic animals; accounts of such foreign and domestic trees, shrubs, vines, plants, &c. &c. &c. grains, as are considered necessary or useful for subsistence, comfort or ornament, with information relative to their treatment, growth, requisite kinds of soils, &c. &c. and in short, whatever may tend to increase the product of the soil, and advance the rural economy of this country.

Insertion will always be given to such reports, addresses and papers, as may be recommended for publication by the several agricultural societies and other states.

A hand register will contain as far as practicable, a list of farms, which are now, or may hereafter be, for sale, according to their size, situation, quality and such other particulars as may be deemed useful.

Space will be afforded for the sale of and sterling beauties of literature, the useful arts and sciences, chemistry, state of the market in the principal sea ports, &c. &c.

Editors copying the above, may contribute to the interests of humanity, science, and will receive a copy of the work "THE FARMER'S MAGAZINE," Philadelphia, Aug. 1896.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

"Where every Muse and all the virtues meet."

For the Elkton Press.

Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life. Put away from the a froward mouth, and perverse lips put far from thee. PROVERBS.

THE SLANDERER.

Dobold! the covert's prowling wolf, Some headless vulture to engulph, Some carcase, wretcheder,
With "froward mouth" and "perverse lips," Fies at his heart, the life-blood sips—So does the Slanderer.

Mark, how the reptile, crawling through Those flow'rs yet bright with nature's dew, Brights them with benedict breath; Tis thus, O'er woman's name more bright, The Slanderer blows his poisonous blight, Far worse to her than death.

Not more destructive in its course, Is Egypt's Nile, long and low To the lone traveler—
Than that foul breath which issues forth, Only to stagnate all worth,
From the Slanderer.

Elkton, Dec. 1, 1828.

THE DEPARTED.

—And thus they flit away, Earth's lovely things.

Where's the snow—the summer snow—On the lovely lily flower?

Where the hues the sunset shed O'er the ruddy crimson hour?

Where's the gold—the bright pure gold—O'er the young labouring flower?

And the fragrant rose that breathed Whence the hyacinth's dropping lung?

Gone, gone—they are all gone.

Maiden, lovelier than the spring,
Is thy bloom's parted rose?

Has thy cheek, for its rose,
Or thine eye its April blue?

Where are thy sweet bursts of song?
Where the wreaths that bound thy hair?

Where the thousand prisoner curls?
And the sunny smile—Where?

Gone, gone—they are all gone.

Youth, where is thine open brow?

What has quill'd thine eagle eye?

Where the freshness of thy cheek,
And the dark hair's raven dye?

Where's thy crimson banner now?
Where's thy eager art and sword?

Where's a time hour of dreamless sleep?
Where flank just and careless sleep?

Gone, gone—they are all gone.

Where's the lighted hall: and where All that made its midnight gay?

And the minstrel's nightly lay?
Where's the graceful arabian?

Where the lamps of starry light?
Where the voices of bright flowers?

Where the blazes yet more bright?
Gone, gone—they are all gone.

Where are those fair dreams that made Life so beautiful at first?

Where the many fantasies That young hope so fondly nursed?

Flaming motto like a knight, Fortune fall, wing the doom?

Pleasure with a folded plume?
Gone, gone—they are all gone.

Oh! mine own heart, where are they—Visions of thy earlier hour?

When thy young hope's colors were Like those on the morning flower?

Where's the trusting confidence Of affection deep and true?

And the spirit's sunshine like,
Which o'er all their gladness threw?

Gone, gone—they are all gone.

"IN MY BOWER SO BRIGHT."

"Let me endeavor to raise the shadow Of this song, which I heard last night. Not Earth is too far below Heaven."

From the Enchanted Lyre.

LABOUR OF IDLENESS, written by Geo. Darley, Esq. under the name of G. Darley, set to music by Charles E. Hoar.

In my bower so bright,
As I lay last night,

'Tis no through the fresh leaves streaming.

There were sounds in the air, But I could not tell where,

Nor if I was thinking or dreaming.

'Twas the sound of a lute To a voice half mute,

That sank when I thought it was swelling;
And it came to my ears

As if drowned in tears
Of the being whose tale it was telling.

The tones were so sweet I thought it most meet

They should not belong to gladness;
'Twas notes so fine,

That, were melody mine,
They should only belong to sadness.

And the air creature sung,
And the wild lute rung
Like the bell when a cherub is dying;
I can tell no more,
But the tale was of woe,
For the sounds were all lost in the sighing.

And still it sung on Till the stars were gone
And the sun through the dew was peeping; When I woke in my bower Every leaf, every flower, Every bud, every blossom, was weeping.

From the Ladies' Literary Port Folio.

STANZAS;

BY MRS. HARRIET MUZZY.

Doubt, when radiant smiles are shining—Doubt, when clasping hands are twining—Doubt, when honied words are flowing—Doubt, when blushes warm are glowing—But never doubt the proof sincere That glimmers in the starting tear.
Doubt, when faithful hopes invite thee—Doubt, when gayest hopes delight thee—Doubt, when white as fondest, fairest—Doubt, when white as brightest, rarest—But never doubt, that raton can live In hearts that suffer—and forgive.

ON A LADY

WHO HAD A REMARKABLE LONG NOSE.
Once at a time, I fair Donatella said, Whose nose was too distinguished to be Mused—
Says I—my dear, I fain would kiss you Sweet—
But never—your lips say yes, your nose Says—no—no—no.

A girl said to her young lover, I shall grant you all you ask, after you have given me what you have not: what you can not have; and yet may give me.

What destroys the happiness of families?
What degrades the intellect of man?
What makes amiable wives widows?
The waters of bitterness flow? From the Brandy bottle.

He who maliciously takes advantage of the ungoverned movements of friendship, is no farther from knavery, than the last moment of evening from the first of night.

From the Maryland Gazette.
A Gentleman in the neighborhood of Annapolis, was addressed by his Overseer in the following style:

"Major! Nobody no where about here won't be painting backer tomorrow morning if all we don't, without ceasing it be us."

Query—What did he mean?

MATRIMONIAL AFFECTION.

(Extract from a Funeral Sermon.)

What other friend has watched like a mother, over the helpless and uncaring hours of sickness—borne with its petulance—Ministered to its infirmities—softened its pains, and smoothed its bed? A pillow? Where are the friends of the friends? Prosperity when the evil days are over, and the years draw nigh into which we must say, we have no pleasure in them? When the clouds of misfortune descend and poverty and want overtake us, when the heart is sick with the unfulfillment of hope, and the spirit droops over its blasted expectations—when the cup of life is poisoned by mischance or grief, when the storm hath no rainbow and the midnight no stars—where then are the flatterers of our cloudless skies and untroubled hours? When schemes of earthly ambition fail, and the hiss of the multitude follows our downfall, whither have they departed?
Where is the shadow that attended us when the sun hath veiled his beams?
Where are the summer birds, when the voice of winter sighs in the leafless forest?—It is too often but in fashion—that preserves the friendship of mankind.

But the attachment of a mother, no change of fortune, no loss of affluence, not even the loss of character, can dis-troy. As the triumph of children is her own, so is their downfall and their dishonor. Her heart bleeds for them instinctively—her tears flow unbidden for their sorrows. Her eyes follow them while present, and her soul goes with them while absent. With patients that never tires, and self denial that never ceases, she cheerfully sacrifices for them her own comforts and pleasures. Her sympathy is felt, not obtruded; her consolation is never officious, and always soothing to the spirit; her friendship is unalterable in life, and strong in death—and she breathes her last sigh in prayer for the welfare of her children.

Remembrance hovers over every incident in those calm and blissful days when her presence gave life its charm.
That affection which turned aside the arrows of misfortune—that gentleness which alleviated the pangs of distress—that tenderness which smoothed the pillow of sickness, that hand which held the aching head of pain; that piety and sanctity which kindled in our heart the pure flame of devotion, those smiles which beamed upon us, and ever the brightest when the world was frowning, and that unalterable love which supported us amidst its unkindness and ingratitude, can those ever be forgotten?

INDULGENT PARENTS.

The wise man says,—"Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child, but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him." Very indulgent parents (I mean those who blind their eyes to the follies of their offspring) should consider that if this correction is not administered at home, their children will not escape it when they go abroad into the world.

That discipline which is omitted in the nursery, will be imposed in active life—and too often applied in the penitentiary. I look with a eye of pity upon a spoiled child, and with commiseration upon his fond parents—sensible that the time will soon come when a father's or mother's fondness will have no power to absolve its misconduct;— when the world with its rigid opinions will severely reprehend those bad habits, that undisciplined deportment, that rascality of language and conduct, which were pardoned or thought pretty in childhood, and by its inexorable laws punish those gross immoralities, the seeds which have been matured by parental indulgence. I commiserate the parents because I foresee that very improper indulgence—every omission to correct where correction is due will even to them be severely retributed. The fond parents can spare the rod—can conceal its fault or can pardon or protect the little culprit; but a father's partiality and commendation of his children cannot if they are all educated obtain for them the respect of the world; nor can a mother's tears avert the rod of public justice, should their children practice those things when of age, which have so frequently been passed over as veniel in childhood.

Every one remembers Esop's fable of the young man going to the gallows who meeting with a woman in the way, bit off her ear. On being reprimanded by the spectators, he replied "This woman is my mother. Whom I was a small boy, I stole a knife and carried it to her; instead of concealing my crime she had whipped me severely; and made me return the knife and beg pardon of the owner. I should not now be going to the gallows," He felt parents, what must have been the feelings of such a mother!

A GOOD JOKE, NOT BADLY TOLD.
The Administration party in this county, called upon us to do their printing. Now although we are Jacksonian to the backbone, it never went against our stomach to earn money from either side, in the "way of business." So we went at it, "hammer and tongs," night and day—and when we had finished, we sent our devil with a wheel barrow load of Tickets Hand bills, &c. to the Adams Committee Room—and in return for our toil, and paper and ink, and wear and tear of press and type, (to say nothing of conscience, as we disposed of that at the commencement of this article,) we say in return for all this, what do you give it up? Why, they sent us the amount of our bill in good current bank notes, with word that they did not intend to remain long indebted to a Jackson printer. "Egad, we've laughed more at this joke, than any when the sun hath veiled his beams?
voice of winter sighs in the leafless
forest?—It is too often but in
of mankind.

THE VANDALIA.—This splendid vessel left her mooring, off the bend of Chester, Pa. on the 1st inst. and, dropping down to New Castle, where she was ordered by Com. Bainbridge, to complete her preparations for sea.

Capt. CHAS. C. B. THOMPSON, we learn, from the Norfolk Herald, has been appointed to command the U.S. Frigate Guerriere, fitting out at Gosport, and destined for the Pacific.

St. Louis.—A census of the city of St.
Louis, in Missouri, has been lately taken by the Sheriff, and the population is found to be, 15,889, slaves and colored persons 1,232; total 5000.

In one of the late Turkish Bulletin, after describing the success of the Turks in one of their sorties, the Bulletin adds:
"The invaders, on their part, displayed a most valiant resistance: but the bravery of the Musselmans triumphed, notwithstanding."

We mentioned yesterday the appointment of Capt. Jones to the command of the Discovery expedition; we since learn that Capt. Benjamin Pennington, of Kingston is appointed directing pilot of the expedition, with the rank and pay of a lieutenant of the Navy. All who are acquainted with these gentlemen, will admit that the Secretary of the Navy has made judicious selections; we understand the Expedition will consist of the sloop of war Peacock late rebuilt, under the eye of Commodore Chauncey; and two brigs well adapted for service; with such an expedition well-equipped, and such appointments, backed by the persevering and meritorious J. N.
Keynolds, with other gentlemen we have heard mentioned, the government and country has every thing to expect from its result.—N. Y. Merc. Adv.

WILMINGTON, (Del.) Nov. 29.
Singular Circumstance.—We called in at the office of Dr. J. P. Vaughan, of this borough, on Thursday last, when he related the following singular occurrence, which we have no doubt is destined to make a great noise in the world, and to be a subject of much discussion among the faculty.
A child about fourteen months old, in the neighborhood of this borough, had been suffering from a singular disease, which upwards of six months, and for the last three months, experienced the most excruciating pain. Its parents supposing its illness to proceed from worms, administered the remedy usual in such cases, but with little effect. On Sunday last they consulted Dr. Vaughan, who, after hearing their narration, agreed with them in opinion, and thinking that a more powerful dose was all that was necessary, accordingly gave it. The next day a full grown mouse, dead, and one worm, were expelled from the child. The skin of the mouse was completely destitute of hair, and so transparent that the animal could be seen through.
The child had become very much emaciated, and a piercing cry, at times, were incessantly distressing. The parents state that their children had several times discovered nests of mice and brought the young ones into the house, and they suppose that on one of these occasions the infant had sat out in its mouth, and that it entered the stomach, where it had lived until destroyed by the medicine which produced its removal.

The Mouse may be seen at the office of Dr. Vaughan, in East Third-st. near the La Fayette Hotel.—Register.
