IMPORTED HOLSTEIN BULL "MOOIE," PROPERTY OF THE UNADILLA VALLEY STOCK BREEDERS' ASS'N

As we will show in future articles, the butter records of these dairies do not fall far from the wonderful milk that put a single cow making over 3,000 pounds of butter in the record books.

"Udellia Valley Stock Breeders' Association," a sketch on the dairy business in this issue, points a lesson which will be well for some of our enterprising farmers to learn, and rather than to be discouraged by the down farms in Chocoma and Western counties, N. Y., that have been plunked down by their condition, but which would not take them out of the flow of milk.

Their best business was followed from boyhood and thoroughly understood. They decided upon trying dairying, and they did it.

They purchased a first class bull of the Holstein breed, and added others to their small beginning, working steadily to increase their stock and herd and put together. No one of these dairy farmers are could have achieved such splendid results, had it not been for their own energy and confidence in their own integrity and judgment.

The New Year.

On the first day of the new year of 1886 the MIDLAND JOURNAL sends greetings to its friends and army of readers. The year of 1885 although a bountiful year in almost all the products of the farm and workshop, has been one of the most depressed in business in all the series of years of low and falling prices. It is believed, at least hoped, by business men to chronicle dull times have worn themselves out, and that every class of business will begin to stiffen up in the year which is just opening.

E. E. EWING & SONS

From and after this date the Mr. L. E. Ewing & Sons, will be in charge of the business. The arrangement, persons having business with the office can transact it business in my absence, with the "Sons." I will continue to edit and have the general supervision of the business.

E. E. EWING.

A False View.

Some business men who do not understand as much about business as they think when a slack spell comes, withdraw their advertisements imagining they may by this economic management, save a penny. They tell to see that "out of sight is out of mind." In this hurried business age, and customers seeing their name no longer floating at the most local co-located they have gone out of business, gone under or worse still, fallen behind in the race immediately forget them, and make the acquaintance of some bolder rival, who flies his flag in all weather and at all seasons in the lanes of trade; and when Mr. Saxe-penny at the close of a pound, appears again in print his old customers have been captured and led away, and he appears like Elip Van Winkle after 20 years nap, a stranger among strangers to his old haunts. Keep your name before the public, in hard as well as soft times, and when business breaks up or the season comes round, your old friends are with you.

There has been great rejoicing in Georgia, over the success of the prohibition ticket. Brandy, grocers and all that have been brought into requisition to make merry over the downfall of King Alcohol. This is all very gratifying, and inspiring to the person people; but are we most prepared to divine why these fellows rejoice so over the overthrow of so dear a friend, for if there is a people who dearly love their "tod" it is these so-called gentlemen. We have known them to drive 6 miles further in preference to stopping at a temperance hotel where they couldn't get a slug before dinner.

A Daring Highway Robbery.

On Saturday night last about one third of a mile east of Porter's Bridge on the road from that point to Rising Sun, one of the most audacious highway robberies was committed that was ever perpetrated in this part of Cecil county. Mr. J. Granville Richards, member elect to the next House of Delegates of Maryland, who has a store near the east end of Porter's Bridge, left the store for home on foot and alone, about 8:30 o'clock in the evening. He had proceeded up the hill about a quarter of a mile from the store, and when he reached a narrow, deep cut in the road a short distance from the top, he heard the steps of a man. The night was very dark, but not too dark for him to see a heavy club descending on his head. He threw up his left arm and received the blow diagonally on the arm between the elbow and shoulder, the end of the club also striking him on the head. The force of the blow being broken by catching it partially on his arm, he was not stunned or disabled, he closed his eyes, and instantly struck him a heavy blow with his fist which knocked the highwayman down. The next moment he received a blow with a club on the back of his head, which as he expresses it, he thought had knocked his under jaw off. This blow from behind by an unseen confederate of the previous ruffian, knocked Mr. Richards down on top of the man whom he had felled with his fist. The fellow who was under said to his confederate, "be quick" or "strike quick." These were the only words spoken during the scuffle. The struggle then became desperate. The man behind, laying his club vigorously, striking Mr. Richards hurried blows over the head, shoulders and where ever possible, while the man under, commenced using a knife, cutting Mr. Richards on one shoulder, through two coats and their thick padding, inflicting considerable of a wound in the shoulder. His clothing was gashed in several other places, scoring the skin slightly in one other place. It was evident the robber had a long sharp knife, open and ready for such a possible emergency. Mr. Richards got his hand in his prostate foe's hair and could see that he had a short mustache and heavy chin, and was a man 6 feet in height. By the hair he knew he was a white man. The parties on the ground rose to their feet, and as they raised up Mr. Richards was kicked in the lower part of the leg with such violence that the shock took away his breath and doubled him up helpless. He had about $20 in silver in a roll bag in his over coat pocket, and a shot of bank notes in his pocket. The robber, the moment their victim was doubled, seized the pockets of his pants and with a snatch tore them open, took the pocket book, and the bag of silver from his over coat pocket. By this time Mr. Richards had recovered somewhat from the effects of the stunning kick, and making a kick at his assailants as they were starting off, struck the bag in the hands of one of them knocking out, which afterward proved, $7.50 of the coin. When the robbers made off he returned to the store, where several men were still on hand, who repaired to the scene of the conflict. The club used by the highwayman, was found, and the empty pocket book that contained the bank-note, a short distance from the spot where the encounter took place. The burglars used were identified as having been taken from the wood yard of a house at the foot of the hill. The large burglar which was used by the first assailant was a piece of three by 12 inch rail of a picket fence dry white oak, about 4 feet long. The other club was a piece of round lapwood stick. On the ground where the scuffle took place, a quantity of brown mustard seed, such as is used for making pickles, was found. But there is nothing that can be called a clue by which to trace the daring robbers. It is evident from their preparation and persistence, that they were experts and not green hands at the business. The fact that no words passed between them, except when directed necessarily forced one to call to the confederate to strike or "be quick," and the ruffian who was knocked down, having his knife open and ready to use in case he got into a tight place. The notes were all $10 bills except one $5; and the amount secured by the foot, was about $150. Mr. Richards is bruised and hurt about the head, arms and shoulders, but the severest injury received was from the kick in the bowels, which it had been a little more direct, might have proved fatal, the blow fortunate by being somewhat oblique. The wounded man is rapidly recovering, and it is believed that no serious sequences will result from the injuries received, but that the affair did not result in murder may be justly attributed to accident or good fortune. That the villains meditated murder as a possible outcome, is proven by the sharp knife held in readiness and the reckless, violent blows dealt with heavy clubs.

Butchering.

West and Yerkes our city butchers have been doing a bloody business, slaughtering neighbors' hogs for some time past. They also manufacture sausage meat for a great many farmers, who find this a more economical and agreeable way of getting their sausage meat to shape. If they will, to preserve the meat in its fresh and toothsome condition, they can do so by cooking and plying the felled cakes in earthen crocks, then covering the whole with melted lard. Sausage in this way can be preserved for months, free from odor or stale taste and as good as when manufactured. A few calves are wanted for use upon them out of the creek, when they come up in a pan, and presto! you have a dish of sausage fresh and new as the day after it was chopped.

Detective Association.

The Rising Sun Detective Association, after advertising to hold its annual meeting on Saturday, January 2nd it is very desirable that a full attendance of members should be had at that time, as business of much import may well be left until before the association. A big dinner will be discussed on that occasion, and it is the intention of many of the members to move a discontinuance of the dinner feature, and allow the association to accumulate in the treasury in order to enable the association to hold a large event for a time. New membership is also important, and it will be the duty of every member to endeavor to secure a new name to the list, so as to increase the working power of the Association.

MARRIED.

CAMPBELL-FRIER-Dr. Wednesday Mr. Campbell and Miss Frier were married at the residence of the bride's parents near Woodlawn, by Rev. Joseph Robinson of the Rising Sun M. E. Church. A large number of friends and neighbors witnessed the ceremony and congratulated the young couple.

DIED.

GUNSA-At Vesta Pa. Dec. 27th after a long, painful illness 81 fey youngest daughter of the late Jesse and Elizabeth Gunsa of this county expired at the home of her father on Wednesday the 30th.

Money in Silk Worms.

The rearing work for women seems to be a very profitable business. It is all done in doors, and at home, and when comforted with care pays and can be carried on in any part of the United States where the Russian Mulberry, or Chinese Mulberry will grow. The last manual for beginners is "Two Summers in a Economy," by the young and cultured Miss Barwell. The book simply tells how she succeeded before she was 12 years old, in raising silk worms successfully and profitably. The price of a copy is 50 cents postpaid. Send orders to this office.

Meetings of County Commissioners.

The regular meetings of the County Commissioners will be held on the second Tuesday of every month. Collectors and others having accounts to be settled or settled will apply to the Clerk during the recess of the Board. Persons having claims against the county will please file the same in the Commissioners' office, with a legal voucher, as no account will be allowed not properly chargeable to the same. By order, JOHN R. BOWSELL, Clerk. Commissioners Cecil County.

THE "AAGIE" FAMILY OF HOLSTEIN-FRIESIAN CATTLE, OF THE LAKESIDE STOCK FARM, SYRACUSE, N. Y.

OUR ILLUSTRATION.

Our illustrations represents the famous Aggie Family of Holstein cattle, of Lake Side Stock Farm of Smiths, Powell & Lamb, Syracuse N. Y.

This company formed the herd of Holsteins about ten years ago, and at expense or painstaking has been omitted to build up a herd which should have a high average of excellence, excelled by none in this country or Europe. That the company have succeeded in their object, the milk records of their cows bears the strongest evidence.

As milk is the first object aimed at by purchasers of the Holstein breed, we give below the performance at the pail and as better makers, a number of cows of this particular family of Holstein-Friesian Cattle. The herd of this company contains fully 500 head, a majority being young heifers.

When confronted by the figures the wonderful product of the Holstein cattle are apt to strike the reader with astonishment. There are now in this herd 3 cows whose yearly milk records averaged 20,053 lbs. 7 cts; 10 cows whose yearly records average 18,116 lbs. 7 1/2 cts; and 26 cows whose yearly average records are 16,019 lbs 1 cts.

HARPOD JOTTINGS.

What is looking green and is growing a-m-e; corn in the fodder yet, despite the weather during the hunking season. Many of the farmers have taken advantage of the fine weather through December to plow and for spring planting. The roads are very muddy and rough.

God seem to have given the people of Harford a Pentecostal shower of his grace and spirit this season. Rev. T. E. Peters of Deer Park circuit has had his labors greatly blessed at every stage. His people form Emory and Vernon charges planned to give him a surprise on New Year night, and made a grand success of it. At about 75 persons assembled at the school and as a token of their respect presented him a very fine buff fur robe, a string of bells and a fine new hat. They also made his wife the recipient of a splendid new carpet sleigh, made by A. Thomas, of Prospect. These presents were given by the young men who lately joined his church. The young women and older members brought presents of stockings and other articles of clothing for himself and family, besides hams, beef, pork, butter and other things for cupboard and cellar, and all joined to give him a pound apiece as the table showed by the load of tea, coffee and other goods brought from the neighboring stores. Rev. J. B. Scarborough made the presentation in a neat little speech and when Mr. Peters arose to reply, the surprise had been so complete, that he could scarcely express his deep and heart felt thanks. Rev. Peters is an able and bold preacher and savor some what of the "preachers of yore" in his fearless denunciation of sin and ungodliness, and had won the esteem of his people and those of neighboring denominations. After a short prayer by their Pastor the people adjourned to the Dublin M. E. Church to assist him in a revival service now in progress at that place. The good people of Dublin and Franklin charge propose to show their regards to the same preacher in the near future by presenting him with a fine suit of clothes and a new overcoat, besides giving him a pound apiece.

The State miners in the upper end of the County are complaining of dull sales, and as a consequence many of the quarries are doing but very little; some of them have entirely closed.

Much dissatisfaction is felt among the patrons by the removal of the Prospect and Dela Post Masters.

CONOWINGO BAKINGS.

Our towns has taken off her holiday attire and has resumed her usual routine of business and her merchants are taking a sort of stock as dooming their goods. We had a variety of Christmas decorations, in and around Conowingo. In town we had music and a Santa Claus at A. C. Crocker's & Co's. store; at Plover's, a Christmas tree and a visit from Kris Kringle and family, accompanied with loads of candies and presents for the Pilot town Sunday school children, supplemented by a series of midnight gymnastics by the amateur athletic troupe of Pilot town. Mr. Elmer Conrad carried off the first prize in the gas you please foot race while Miss Lila Polig will wear the belt as the most graceful walker. At the Pleasant Grove chapel the Triplex entertainment was all that could be desired in the way of a pleasant treat to the children. The program was replete with interest. The meeting at Oakwood on the 26th of Dec. was the largest one we have had. A rather tame debate was indulged in by a few of the members but was not interesting, except the short sermon by the theological member whose remarks about the gray-haired lady were much appreciated for the jocular present. The musical part of the program was excellent. Mr. Thomas Ross, Virginia accompanied by his wife and the organ, rendered some beautiful selections from the ancient masters, while Mr. Gus Crocker and Mr. Albert Howell gave us modern music on violin and bass. Mr. A. L. Crocker & Brother a Tenor and Bass duet, entitled Bridget Donovan, Mr. J. R. Willey gave us Wattle cradle hymn, while Miss Sadie Newton of Conowingo, in her clear soprano voice, rendered with artistic effect some of the popular ballads of the day. The debate at Plover town continued; the question,Resolved: That Scripture men should be encouraged, was extensively discussed on Dec. 21th. Mr. Frank Cummings in his short speech in the affirmative, fully elucidated the principles and aims of the U. A. R., convincing the audience that he knew what he was discussing. The schools have started again, and are well filled with bright looking girls and boys. Bad colds and bad roads are prevalent. What is looking well—Mrs. Lizzie Adams has returned from her trip to Columbia. Mr. John Tilling has purchased a house and lot in Pilot town, so we at the Kivore property. We are all carrying via choctaw.

His Family heard from.

The tramp boy who clubbed Mrs. Sollors, an account of which was published in the MIDLAND of December 25th, and who had so many aliases, has been traced back to his starting point, and his plausible stories accepted to be a tissue of falsehood. Squire Taylor, wrote to one of the gentlemen the boy said he had lived with, in Fairfax county, Va., and received a reply a few days since, stating that the boy's parents were both living in Washington D. C. at No. 333 M. Street, S. W. and that his true name is Charles Bradley, the name he gave, and was known by at Sollors's. Thos. Burton who writes in reply to Mr. Taylor's letter says he gave the name of Willie Davis while staying with him, but he discovered his true history afterward. Al pitiful with whom he has been living, give him the credit of being industrious and seemingly a good boy, but there appears to be a large slice of "devilish depravity" in his make up which will soon lead him to the penitentiary, thence to the gallows. He is now in Elkton jail and to the house of correction he will go from there.

Candy Making at Home.

The new and revised edition of this valuable book has just been issued. It contains 250 receipts, telling exactly in plain and easy language, how to make out of some choice receipts here given. With this book all the candies for Christmas or other festive occasions can be made at a small outlay, and, what is better, they will be pure, while most of the candy sold is adulterated and unwholesome. Price of book 50 cents. Send orders to this office.

Court Proceedings.

The adjourned term of the circuit Court, met on Monday last, when the case of State vs Isaac Mackinnon, for selling whiskey in violation of the local option law was taken up. The testimony was very conflicting. Verdict, not guilty. State vs, name, name, Verdict, not guilty. State vs, name, name, Verdict, not guilty. State vs, name, name, Verdict, not guilty.

State vs. Wm. Lyle. Indictment for same offense. Verdict not guilty in the three preceding cases. State vs. Eric Carter. Same offense. Verdict not guilty. State vs. Harry Crawford. Same offense. Verdict not guilty. State vs Wm. Riddle and State vs Warren Weisking. Indicted for perjury committed at this term of court. Verdict not guilty.

For a minute, for eighty feet and more, they glided down—down—making themselves as if the abyss in which they were hurled were really bottomless. Already the roar of the raging waters below them could be heard. Then they understood that the lightning conductor had fallen into the torrent. What was to be done? To climb back to the base of the dome they could not; for their strength was unequal to the task. And death, for death was better to choose than the which waited for those in the deadly net.

Suddenly there came an awful clap of thunder and an intense electric glare. Although the conductor was not struck, yet the tension of the electricity was such that the iron rope grew white as a platinum thread beneath the discharge of a battery or a pile.

"Bathory emitted a cry of despair—and let go."

Sunder saw him pass him, almost touching him with his arms wide open. And then he let go the iron rope which clung in his hands; and he fell more than forty feet into the torrent of Poulis which foamed along at the foot of the unknown chasm.

CHAPTER XI.

ALONG THE POULIS.

It was about eleven o'clock. The clouds had begun to dissolve in drizzling showers mingled with rain. Then large hailstones which shot into the waters of the Poulis and rattled over the moss down the sides like the stream of lead from a mitrailleuse. The firing from the embrasures had ceased. Why waste ammunition on the fugitives? The Poulis would only give them up as corpses—even if even it did that.

As soon as Count Sunder fell into the torrent he found himself swept helplessly into the Buco. In a few moments he passed from the intense light with which the electricity filled the ravine into the profoundest darkness. The war of the waters had taken the place of the fall of thunder. For into that impetuous cavern there entered none of the effulgent light or sounds.

"Hello!"

"There was a cry. It was Stephen Bathory. The cool of the water had cooled him back to life, but he could not keep himself afloat, and he would have gone down had not a vigorous arm seized him as he was sinking."

"I am here! Stephen! Don't be afraid!"

Count Sunder was by his side, holding him with one hand while he swam with the other.

The position was critical. Bathory could hardly move his limbs. They had been half paralyzed by the stroke. Although the rain of his hand he had been suddenly released by their plunge to the cold, the state of inertia in which they were was such that neither of them was able to stir.

THE GREEN-NECK MONSTER.

"My dear," observed Mr. Grap, as he came in a little late for supper, "I am very glad I couldn't get home sooner, but I stopped on the way up to get some tickets for the theatre."

"You ought to know better than to waste your money in that way, Mr. Grap."

"Yes, my dear, but I got them for Mary Anderson."

"You did, hey! you got some tickets for Mary Anderson? You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Mr. Grap. Here I am left at home to work my hands off while you go out and buy tickets for Mary Anderson."

"But my dear, I was going to take you to see Mary."

"I don't want to see her and you ought to be ashamed to tell me that it is bad enough for you to go and buy theatre tickets for her."

"But, my darling—"

"Look here, Mr. Grap, I want to tell you one thing. If you mention that woman's name to me again, you'll be sorry for it. You needn't try to explain, for I won't have it. Mary Anderson, hey! I suppose you gave her the tickets?"

"No, my dear, I—"

"Then the best thing you can do is to put them in the fire."

"But, my darling—"

"See here, John Grap, if you don't put those tickets in the fire you'll regret it."

And John goes and puts the five dollar worth in the stove, mentally resolving that the philosopher was right when he divided mankind into varieties of fools.

HE HAD FACED HIS ORCH.

A lot of traveling men were seated about a stove, in a southern hotel, telling stories, when the name of a local tough and bruiser was mentioned.

"He's a bad citizen," remarked one, "and I'd hate to tackle him."

"Bob," put in a little drummer, in a plug hat and a fiery eye, "I tackled him once."

"Aw, come off. You ain't a patchin' on a man like him."

"All the same I tackled him."

"May be you did when he was in one town and you in another."

"Not much. I went right up to him and called him a liar to his face."

"Hold on, now, you can't give us a dose like that."

"You don't have to believe it if you don't want to, but I did just what I tell you and I got the squawf' kicked out of me in about three quarters of a minute, railroad time."

The crowd took him out and filled him up.

Items of Interest.

In the twelve cities of Massachusetts the death rate averages 30.57 per thousand. The extremes are 23.07 in Boston and 35.03 in Lynn.

A negro in Tennessee stole glass for a living. A writer is one of the manual papers says he will maintain glass for pay, "in any quantity, from a small piece to a lamp chimney, and keep it up all day."

A willow farm in Moon, Ga., produces about a ton of switches to the acre, commencing when dried, $200. Next, the leaves and bark, which when dried, are made a pound barrel, the enterprise pays better than cotton.

There is a large industry in the manufacture of fur from feathers. It is equal to any other in the country for the material is used for the borders of Indian coats, dresses, etc., and even sealion cloaks have been successfully imitated with it.

Onion baths are a specialty at Exmouth, England. The bath is filled with long green seaweed, steeped in salt before use in boiling water. The bath remains in about twenty minutes, and the bath is thought very invigorating.

On the sides of the cave recently discovered in California, which some about to fall upon and crush the lives of their grand down. A cruel observation will show, however, that the boulders which originally were displaced from the roof, have been caught in a fissure in the wall, where they have remained in the same threatening attitude for centuries, as is shown by the depth of the calcareous deposits which cover them.

TRAVELS IN EUROPE.

Special Correspondence to the Midland Journal.

June 5th.—Nine o'clock and not yet dark. "Hotel de l'Europe" is like many others where we have stayed in Holland, divided by court yards, and in these yards are tables for gentlemen to sit at and smoke. Last evening while we were looking down into one of these yards we spied a young gent, belonging to our party, sitting in his room, he soon became aware of two pairs of eyes watching him, and said he was "writing to his mother," we replied that "young men were not always as dutiful as they represented themselves." He is a good natured kind hearted soul and we all like him. Nearly all of the natives speak French here. The educated can speak a little English. Two new members joined our party recently. One does justice at table, I guess he has been saving up for this trip, for he doesn't seem to get satisfied. The other wears a wig, and a red one at that. While he was selecting it, he might have chosen a milder shade. The first place we visited, was the "Musée d'antiquités." Upon entering the first room we saw a very handsome table, the top of which, is tortoise shell. Second room contains two handsome ones. One inlaid with tortoise, the other inlaid with something resembling silver, very beautiful. A long glass case contains bills, notes and manuscripts. Latin books with illuminated texts, all executed by hand in the year 1402. A book printed in 1555. A Hebrew bible in 1565. Carmen Paschale, very ancient, Cicero's handwriting (?) Latin bible 1470. And many others too numerous to mention. Next room contains ancient furniture, copper plates of pianos manufactured in 1774 resembling the grand pianos of a few years ago, only not so complicated. Leather chairs stand all around the room. Beautiful tapestry lines the walls, too faded of course. Cabinet with china ware in it. Rooms were passed through, which were full of ancient books. This place was once occupied by the printer and writer. Next passed through rooms filled with ancient books and manuscripts. Proof readers room containing chair, table, candlestick, sconces and cabinet, all of which smell of age. As we passed out of this room we saw a tablet set up and printed by the "Crown Prince of Prussia." After passing through other rooms of great interest, we entered a bedroom used 329 years ago. Frier's wife embroidered coverlet of silk but not a cravat quilt on bed. The room contains other articles of interest. Went on through dining room and work room. Polished floors all thro' the building. Architectures magnificent, brick ceilings. And on to the "Church of St. Jacques," richest in Antwerp.

Small Portraits of Style at the Strong-hold.

Special Correspondence to the Midland Journal.

There is every prospect of a prosperous season. Ingenues are briskly busy at the centres of trade.

Many new enterprises are asserting themselves for the incoming season, which tend to increase and emphasize the progress of the age.

Importers are already bringing their Spring brands into prominence and the counters of leading dealers, team with articles bearing the red check education.

This is in truth, a very harvest for

targets upon all festive specialties reduced to the merest minimum of actual value but excellent articles in standard lines, are slashed by the relentless knife of the stockholder.

Some of the favorite such as hats, responds and Cord de la Reine which is a new and pleasing variety of the old favorite Nonpareil Velveteen still retains their street wear and travelling superiority by land or sea.

It makes elegant suits for skating

too, supplemented by bands of beaver

in the natural shade or the Hudson

Bay style, of which O. C. Shayle makes a specialty, even in the manufacture of his magnificent London

dressed, and Paris modeled, wraps fashioned and finished after the new regime, no one would fancy they came originally from this great American stronghold, of the skins

of commerce; yet such are the forces and facilities of our creative and executive ingenuities, that no stone is left unturned, in the effort to rise

honestly to the first ranks of trade.

In any line and this is what O. C.

Shayle has done; and all connections wrought by his hand bear the unmistakable stamp of this leader in the fur lines of commerce.

Gargents so trimmed, whether of wool silk or velvet, should of course be cut with unerring accuracy.

The first consideration in the matter of fashioning being the color, I have some information to impart which may benefit lady readers of the "JOURNAL."

There is a new correct on the Tapis

which from a sanitary standpoint,

should be tested with the eye to health which should be the synonym of comfort, as well as style. The fabric of these corsets is an elastic

wire section which expands or contracts, with the swinging of the body.

The bands for misses and nurses

are especially commended for qualifications possessed by no other variety of goods of this class. Any lady who cares to investigate the merits of Ball's corsets, should apply to the

New York agents, 13 Lispenard St.

New York City for an illustrated circular which will at once and forever settle the question of this new claimant to popular favor.

MR. P. T. BARNES'S recipe for preparing pickles is as follows: Wrap each of this in a cotton bandage, wound about it two or three times, and cord it with twine. When all the jars are ready plunge them into boiling water, and boil them for four hours. Let them remain in the liquid until they are needed to fry, boil or pickle. The will hold together while cooking, and when eaten they will be tender and deliciously prepared.

Temperance.

A Movement for Organization.

At this late day there is some indication of a gentle effort being made to organize the temperance sentiment of the county, and make head against the red interest to save the local option law, and attempt to perfect the law,

or amend it, so as to give it some degree of legal force. It is legal force, it is perpetual, and for the good it has effected, the public is almost entirely indebted to the moral influence the statute commands. The abuse of justice by the legal methods which now prevail in our courts, finds a most easy subject to manage in the present local opti on law. The law makers who pass the act appear to have lost sight of the fact that the purpose of the law

was to prevent the sale of any liquid that would intoxicate people. So they put a clause in the law which permits

any one to tap a barrel of hard cider and sell while there is a man able to stand and drink, or till the street is filled with drunken men, women and children if the subjects can be brought up.

To amend such a law as this the temperance sentiment is making an effort to organize; to punish the men who get drunk and swear he doesn't know where he got the whiskey, who swears

in a court of justice that he doesn't know whether he drank whiskey or not is short they wish to ask the legislature to put a clause in the local option law to punish the man who doesn't know from whom he bought the fluid

that made him drunk, and don't know opinions liquor when he tastes it.

We want a law to punish a man who is found drunk, unless he gives the name of the man who sold him the liquor, and we want the law to make it prima facie evidence, that the selling of any liquid to a person which intoxicates him, is a violation of the law and punishable as such.

There is a call issued for a meeting at Elkhart to-morrow, to organize for the purpose above stated. Let every man and woman too, attend who stands by your representatives and inform them what your wishes are, and they will carry them out but if they feared you will hand them over to the tender mercies of the whiskey men they will not carry them out.

There is a pool in Utah only a foot deep, and situated at a very high altitude, that refuses to freeze even in the severest winters. There is another that extinguishes its flames itself with half-grown trout. One stream, though clear as crystal to the eye and tasteless, stains all the vegetation it flows over a deep brown. A warm spring near Salt

Lake City is the strongest sulphur water in the world. A hot spring a few miles from the same waters so hot that you can hardly put your hand into them, and as bright as diamonds, is one of the most remarkable combinations of chemicals

ever analyzed.

Iron stains. Iron may be removed from iron stains, or of any kind of stain,

but if these fail, moisten the stain spots

with water and rub on a little powdered oxide. Wash the acid off thoroughly soon after it is put on it will eat the cloth. Also wash it from your hands, and keep it away from children, for it is poisonous in the mouth. Ink stains may be taken out in this way. Acids last better be used only on white goods.

COUNTY NEWS.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 15, 1886.

MINOR LOCALS.

Work in the Port Deposit roundary has been resumed at a 10 per cent reduction in the wages.

Our ice men commenced on Tuesday, all their houses. Hain's dam is the great collecting depot for ice.

The cold got down 1, 4 or 5 below that round 0, matched cold dot called snow on Tuesday morning.

We are no snow birds now a days, hoping about the yard, as we used to after a snow storm; no bird but the pecky sparrows.

The ubiquitous thieves hop on the railroad depot at Elkton one night last week and tried to pry open the safe but failed.

We learn that Mr. Jerry Gatchell who has been in the ferry of the McCallough Iron Co. at Rowlandville, for 20 years has resigned his position.

All who are so unfortunate as to have eye afflictions will do well to remember that Dr. Morrison, oculist, will attend at Rising Sun on Tuesday next.

Mr. J. Granville Richards, notwithstanding his injuries resulting from his encounter with the robbers is attending to his legislative duties at Annapolis.

The Maryland Farmers Association assembled in Baltimore on Wednesday. The representative from our district, Jesse A. Kirk, attended the convention.

John Janney has been appointed P. M. at Bay View by Joseph T. Reed. J. C. Hindman has been appointed P. M. Rising Sun, vice Jesse A. Kirk, resigned.

Mrs. Cameron, wife of Alfred Cameron, residing near Zionsville on the 6th inst. of typhoid fever. Her remains were interred at Rose Bank Cemetery on Saturday.

The Cecil Farmers Club will hold its January meeting at Mr. Knott McCallough's on Wednesday next, Jan. 20th, a full attendance of members is very desirable.

Several changes in Elkton business firms are reported to take place in the Spring. Mr. Campbell of Rock Springs will take the store at present occupied by Masly Drennon.

John Lamm has purchased a lot opposite the post office in Port Deposit, from J. Harvey Rowland, on which he proposes to put up a stylish double house. Dr. W. West builder.

Mr. Hiram Crothers, while the public to know that he desires the charge of highway robbery upon Mr. Richards, and although he does not profess to be a Christian, he hasn't come down to highway robbery yet.

The Teachers Association did not meet at Port Deposit last Saturday as announced, on account of the weather being too disagreeable was postponed till the first Saturday in February, the regular day of meeting.

Our Star route mail carrier tried carrying the mail across the country to Port Deposit and intermediate places, on foot Saturday and Monday last. He returned by the 4:36 P. M. train to the Sun.

Wm. M. Singler's new house in this town has been finished and partially furnished. The interior is finished in oak and California red wood, which has been polished to correspond with the oak on outside.

The gas jets are lighted by electricity, and altogether the house is more like a fairy palace than the residence of an ordinary human being—Cecil Democrat.

The 7 male Cecil Paper mill team heavily turned out on Monday morning and forced it away through the drifts till it entered the rising sun, when the team came to a halt, till the big drift in Cherry st. was cut through.

Rev. Mr. Galloway of the Methodist Church is very popular among his congregation. His Rowlandville friends are to emphasize their esteem for their minister in a more substantial way, gave him a Christmas donation party.

George L. Moore of the Girard House, Chestnut & 9th sts. Philadelphia has purchased the Hughes farm, formerly the property of John Owens, of Elk Neck, for $10,000 which he proposes converting into a vegetable farm to supply his hotel.

Frank Jefferts and his employer of North East, against whom were four charges for wintering, in violation of the local option, law, appeared before Justice Scott on Saturday last and gave bond for their appearance at the March term of the Circuit Court for this county.

The Cecil Fire Brick company gave their annual dinner to their employees on the 23rd ult. which was a very pleasant affair as all good dinners are sure to be. This company is located at North East and is one of the important manufacturers that are steadily multiplying and increasing in this county.

While a party of double barreled gunners, at Charlotown, were bringing down that detectable bird known among ornithologists by the name of "song balls," William Cooper accidentally shot Aurilias Taylor, several shot hitting him in the head and face, but not seriously injuring him.

F. S. Everist and George Biddle have been reappointed School Commissioners by the Judges after the Circuit Court of this county, their term having expired. Jesse A. Kirk having been appointed to fill the place made vacant by the death of David Scott, the Board is now full.

The ice has gored 10 miles up the river, report says, from the new B. & O. bridge to Conowingo, when the gorge began to form on Sunday and Monday, the water was backed up flooding some of the cellars. The cry is now that the B. & O. bridge "must go."

The most disastrous collision occurred at Wilmington on Saturday morning that has happened on the P. & W. R. R. for a long time. 3 men were killed out right and a fourth fatally injured. The bleeding snow train prevented the engineers from stopping.

Good people of Cecil, don't let the present Legislature waste away the season, without having the local option law amended. Better make an appropriation from the treasury of the county to pay farmers for their cider, than defray the cost expenses of trying older suits and paying lying witnesses.

The members of the Rising Sun Library Association did not hold the appointed meeting for the election of officers, on Saturday last, being prevented by the state of the weather. The next meeting will take place on Monday (Saturday) 16th at 2 o'clock P. M. It is the desire of the Association that a large attendance will form the meeting. The citizens of the village should take an active, not a mere passive interest in building up a good library. They should have a good deal of money for much less profit. It is better to give the rising sun a good opportunity of enjoying good instructive reading than to leave them a few more or less dollars. The meeting will be held in Dr. Kirk's hall where the Library is kept. Come out and attend the meeting.

The Pennsylvania R. R. Co. it is reported, are taking steps to construct a new yard at Ferryville for the shipment of coal from that point. The Columbia & Pot. Deposits R. R. will transport the coal from the mine to tide water. It is matter of surprise that the company has not taken such a step long ago.

We see it stated in some of our county papers that the rewards offered by the Rising Sun Detective Association, the County Commissioners and friends of J. Granville Richards aggregate $150. We do not believe there is any warrant for stating that Mr. Richards' friends have offered a reward for the arrest of its members. We would certainly have been authoritatively informed if such is the fact.

Red Polled Cattle.

This breed originated well back in the last century, in the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, England. In early days these counties constituted one of the most important dairy districts of England, and the Red Polled was highly esteemed for milk with yielding an excellent quality of butter. The color and general characteristics have been well preserved for at least one hundred and fifty years. They are of medium size, colored like the Devon, and are described as double in disposition, and hardy; they mature early, yield beef of fine quality, and the cows are generally good milkers. The oxen rival the Devon for activity and style. The Red Polled were first introduced to notice in this country by Mr. G. F. Tabor of Putnam Co., N. Y., who imported a bull and three heifers in 1878. The progeny of these animals has been widely disseminated, quite a number of them being now owned in the West. The animals herewith illustrated belong to Mr. Tabor's herd, and are faithful representatives of this beautiful breed.

Highly prized they many advantages over horned cattle. They occupy much less room and can be turned into small pens; a number may be turned into one stable unharmed without danger. The horns of our domestic animals serve no good purpose—but even if they be inflected on the weaker the stronger animals of the breed. In shipping the horns are a great disadvantage and loss to their owners from the injuries the cattle inflict on each other. This is such a serious objection that the hornless breeders are gaining favor in the West rapidly. It is the belief of good authority on the subject that the horns may be readily bred off, if the Short Horns and Jerseys, without sacrificing any of their good qualities by crossing them with the improved hornless or Polled breeds.

The Farmers' Convention.

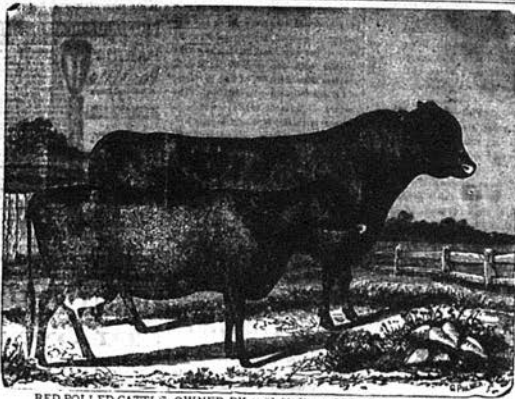

The Farmers' Convention held in Baltimore last week was an earnest animated meeting in favor of promoting the agricultural interests of the State.

The delegates from Cecil county were Dr. R. C. Mackall, William S. Potter, Robert H. Steel, William J. Wilson, Dr. H. E. Brownell, Stephen C. Mague, Henry S. Cook, &c. The Cecil County Farmers' Club delegate was H. H. Dyerlock president of the Club.

The interest of the convention being very properly on the establishment of an Agricultural Station, some of the members favoring the Agricultural College as the proper place, while other members preferred a different location separate from the College.

The report of the committee locating the proposed experiment station at the State College was read, C. Lyne Rogers wanted the location left open. Dr. R. C. Mackall said that it would be economy to place the station at the college. Secretary Steele read an extract from the Journal of the House of Delegates of 1881, showing that the college received $229,775.50 from the State of Maryland, including $69,375.50 from United States scrip, which was chartered.

We must have very wide of the mark.

when we charge that not one dollar's advantage of this large sum of money has accrued to the interests of agriculture in Maryland. The college has been a lying hospital for political dead beats, who have wasted the money in pretending to teach a few students navigation and a smattering of the dead languages, and other fragments of the old style black letter college education.

Col. W. S. Franklin said he intended to offer a minority report that the location be stricken out. Col. William Allen of McDonough School, addressed the convention on the subject of experimental stations. For $25,000 a station could be started and $3,000 a year would keep it going. The subject of an experimental station was finally referred to an independent committee, which consisted of Col. H. D. Kuyd of Washington county, C. Lyne Rogers of Baltimore county, Dr. R. C. Mackall of Cecil county, H. H. Hutton of Montgomery county, Springfield Baldwin, of Anne Arundel county. At the election of officers Henry S. Cook was elected one of the vice-presidents by the Cecil county delegation.

Dr. Mackall favors the station being placed on the College grounds. We trust that the college will be thoroughly cleaned out and started on a new basis before a station is located there. The growth of fungus which has been accumulating for years around and over the miserable Agricultural College will poison and choke any institution that is planted in its midst. Now that the Farmers Association has taken hold of it by a set of political dead beats by a set of political dead beats in Maryland has been Agricultural College as Niagara, Kansas and Massachusetts. The two former especially are model colleges of the kind. To have their funds used up by a set of political dead beats is as great a waste as it is as an outrageous pillage of the farmers of this State.

The net earnings of the P. W. & B. Railroad last year, were $1,789,000. The old officers have been re-elected for the ensuing year.

Our Washington Letter.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 18, 1886. Congress, which began last week with a promise of steady work, ended it by an indulgence in a recess, having adjourned over from Friday until today. While in session, however, some industry marked its proceedings. The House even held a night session for the purpose of considering minor measures, and also discussed and voted for the Succession bill, which makes Cabinet officers, one after the other, emergency to the Presidency in case of an emergency.

The Senate listened to a number of long speeches on silver coinage and other subjects, and confirmed several hundred of the President's nominations in its daily secret sessions.

There has been a great deal of talk about the Election between the President and Senate in regard to removals and appointments to office. But so far, the Republican Senators have not become very much excited in their search for reasons for the suspension of federal officials, and some of them hold that the President has the right to suspend arbitrarily. If he pleases and give no reasons. There will be no open rupture without further developments.

The Republicans in the House of Representatives are, as a rule, kindly disposed towards President Cleveland, and are in favor of giving him a fair chance. They expect to vote for liberal appropriations, particularly for the Navy, and for coast defenses. They say they will favor giving Secretary Whitney all the money he needs to carry out his plans for building up the Navy.

The recent action of the Senate in ordering that all nominations, confirmations, rejections and withdrawals be published in the Congressional Record, is regarded by some Members of that body as the first step to a final abolition of secret sessions. A short while ago the Senate would have been shocked at the mere suggestion of publishing the proceedings of its executive sessions. But some Senators now believe that the system of secrecy with regard to nominations tends to encourage vicious attacks upon men named for office, and think, if nominations were considered openly, malicious persons would be deprived of opportunities they now have for secretly making charges and insinuations against nominees.

On the other hand, many Senators are fond of the freedom of their secret sessions and would never agree to give them up. They say the public sessions of such a devious and dissipated body as the Senate heavily tax the physical powers of Senators, most of whom are elderly men, or men who have passed the meridian period of their strength. When the doors are closed and the world shut out, they can, without neglecting their duties smoke a cigar, lounge on sofas or in other ways enjoy a restful change.

On Saturday afternoon there was a melancholy interruption of social festivity at the White House, through the sudden death of Miss Kate Hayard, eldest daughter of the Secretary of State. Miss Hayard had seemed well and extremely gay at the reception in her mother's parlors the evening before. But when she retired at 1:30 A. M. she complained of great fatigue, and having been asked to go to Miss Cleveland's weekly reception at three o'clock on Saturday, asked that she might not be disturbed until one hour before the time for the White House reception. Her sister Nannie went to awaken her at the appointed time, and found her lying in her bed dead. She was the favorite child of the Secretary, and the main reliance of her invalid mother in all social affairs. The fact that the Hayard household will remain in mourning for a long time will detract from the round of entertainments at the White House, as both Mrs. Hayard and her daughter were expected to take a prominent part in them. Secretary Hayard was at the State Department when he received the announcement of his daughter's death. For a moment he seemed to be much stunned to realize the fact. He gasped for breath and became deadly pale. Recovering his self-possession, he walked to his carriage trembling in every limb, and was driven to his home. Miss Hayard's death was from physical exhaustion and heart disease, hastened by the active part she has recently taken to the social life of the Capital.

Money in Silk Worms.

The coming year for women seems to be growing silk worms. It is all done in doors, and at home, and when conducted with care pays, and can be carried on in any part of the United States where the Russian Mulberry, or Orange Ouge will grow. The best manual for beginners is "The Silk Worms in a Cocoonery," by the young girl culturist Miss Farwell. The book simply tells how she succeeded where she was 12 years old in raising silk worms successfully and profitably. The price of a copy is 50c postpaid by mail. Send orders to this office.

The Midland thinks that it is not a good substitute for poultry and game, but a good one for chickens. The Midland and now factually mixed this hazy subject with the prominence of the Midland, says it is wrong to say "no" to "but," and says it is "a" of "chicken" and "no" of "the head of cat." That's easy. Did you ever hear of some chickens, brother? Examine one of those trees, and you'll find the price of a horse above under every bud.

The Silver Question.

We are in receipt of a pamphlet on the Silver Question written by Wm. M. Stewart of San Francisco, which is the clearest exposure of the subject in the briefest space that we have ever met with. This question is one of the most important and heavy money syndicate in the world is at stake is made over sufficient and other money syndicates. But in rally the currency question is the great over-shooting principle of the hour in our political economy, and silver is the pivotal point of that question. The public debt of the world is stated by Mr. Stewart to be $25,000,000,000 and this debt is principally in the hands of great money syndicates from the Rothschilds down. It has been the constant aim of the holders of this debt to increase its value, by contracting the currency. The greater the contraction the more of the profits to be in industry a dollar will buy. When our debt was created a dollar would buy considerably less than one half of the products of labor that it will now hence the holders of those government obligations receive much more of the products of the labor millions than they did when the obligations were created.

By putting silver down and gold up and insisting that their bonds call for gold only, and demoting silver, their securities are increased in value, while business and all classes of industry are depressed by necessarily lower prices. While the interest on the public debt remains numerically the same, the difference is constantly widening between the obligation holders and the interest payers.

The law creating the bonded debt of the United States says that the interest shall be paid in coin, making it optional for the government to pay either in gold or silver. There are now lying idle in the treasury tons of silver coin. In June last our government bought $6,000,000 of gold to pay what a fair construction of the law required to be paid from the treasury tons of silver coin. The nation. This extraction of silver of course tends to diminish its worth and it being the money of the industrial classes, the value of their labor goes down with it.

In place of coin silver dollars and storing them in vaults, if the government would issue silver certificates payable in coin when presented at the treasury, or better still if the law authorities of the banking of certificates for silver dollars, and pay the interest on the public debt with silver and gold, and not in gold alone, there would be no use of silver against silver, and in place of the millions lying in the treasury vaults which the people have been purchasing it would be circulated through the people, silver notes, reducing the price of gold, increasing the price of products and starting the wheels of machinery every where.

The next Presidential campaign is likely to turn on this question. We advise every person who desires to be informed on this momentous question to procure a copy of Mr. Stewart's pamphlet on the silver question and study it carefully. It contains volumes of information on the subject in a very brief space.

The Temperance Convention.

A convention composed of the citizens of Cecil County in favor of amending the Local Option law, by repealing the elder clause, and increasing the penalties for its violation, was held in Gold Folio's Hall, Ellicott on Tuesday. Delegates from every district excepting the Ninth were present.

The following officers were elected: President, Thomas C. Bond; Vice President, Thomas P. Jones, Sr.; T. H. Hopper, G. A. Blake, W. T. Rye, Alfred Ford, M. E. Kirk, J. H. Howland and J. D. Bennett; Secretary, Geo. O. Garry; Treasurer, W. H. Elder.

A resolution asking for the repeal of the elder clause and that the penalty for the first offense shall be changed to six months in the House of Correction, and for the second offense one year in the House of Correction, was also unanimously passed, and a committee consisting of one or more from each district appointed to carry the same to the State Legislature and urge its passage.

Independent Order of Good Templars.

We the undersigned, believing the Independent Order of Good Templars to be well calculated to promote the blessing of Sobriety and Morality, and to promote the general welfare of mankind, have petitioned the Grand General Lodge of Maryland to grant us, members and authority to open a Lodge of Good Templars at Rising Sun, Md. and we cordially invite the assistance of all persons, in this vicinity, who favor the cause of Temperance to meet with us at a public meeting to be held in Dr. Kirk's Hall on Monday evening, Jan. 25th inst., at 7:30 o'clock, to call upon the best qualified organizations, and attend to such preliminary business as may be decided upon at that time. Appropriate addresses will be made by various speakers.

The Grand Lodge Officers will be here to institute the Lodge at the lot of P. Henry when all persons Male or female over the age of 14 are requested to join.

The Maryland Farmer.

For January 15th contains a full report of the annual meetings of the Maryland State Farmer's Convention and a great variety of other useful and seasonable matter. THE FARMER makes a specialty of the reports of the proceedings of advanced farmers' organizations but no branch of farm work or farm life is neglected. Live-stock, the dairy, the poultry yard, the garden all receive ample attention and the Home Department is peculiarly adapted to the entertainment and instruction of the farmer's household. THE FARMER is published twice a month on the 1st and 15th, at $1 a year, or six copies sent for $5. SAM'L HANNA & SON, Baltimore, are the publishers.

Candy Making at Home.

The new and revised edition of this valuable book has just been issued. It contains 750 receipts, telling exactly in plain terms how to make all kinds of plain and fancy candies. Many of these receipts have been until now secreted, known only to confectioners. Many good fortune have been made out of some of these receipts here given. With this book all the candies for Christmas or other festive occasions can be made at a small cost, and what is better, they will be pure, while most of the candy sold is adulterated and unwholesome. Price of book 50 cents. Send orders to his office.

-SUBSCRIPTIONS-

We have mailed bills to our subscribers whose subscriptions are past due and hope they will not neglect to call at our office, if in town, or send the amount by mail. Do not forget, friends. One dollar is not much for each person, but 100 persons owing subscriptions means $100, to us, and so on to the end of the line. We know you desire the Journal continued, but you are also aware that we cannot, "nor any other man," afford to publish such a paper at so low a price unless the subs. are paid in advance. This is all that need be said. We shall be pleased to call on every one of our subscribers in person if it were possible but they you are aware is impossible. If you will notice the address on your paper you will find the date up to the time subscription is paid.

Celebrating Her 85 Birthday.

A pleasant reunion took place on Tuesday at the residence of John A. M. Pasmore, on Mahonington street. The occasion was the 85th birthday of his mother, Deborah Brown Pasmore, who has been a widow for thirty-seven years. Her children are all living, and were present with their wives at the reunion, namely: Elizabeth, the eldest, married to Mr. P. Rising Sun, Md. Samuel H. Pasmore, near Glasgow, Iowa, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Cheney, of West Chester, Pa., and lastly our townsmen, J. A. M. Pasmore, the youngest of the family. Mrs. Pasmore is a remarkable woman of her age, is in good health and in possession of her mental faculties. She comes from one of the oldest families in the State. Her maternal ancestor, James Brown, came to America in 1678, before Penn received his charter, and her paternal ancestor William Brown, brother of James, arrived here in 1681, driven here by the persecution of the sect to which they belonged—the Friends. Their father, Richard Brown, of Northamptonshire, England, was the contemporary and friend of Fox. The family is noted for its longevity, and the number of ministers in the roll of descendants. Mrs. Pasmore's parents lived to be 95 and 97 years respectively, and many of her ancestors approached high unto the full century. She has lived under every administration of the Nation except that of Geo. Washington. There was not at the time of her birth any railway, steamboat, mowing, reaping or threshing machines, except the scythe, the sickle and the "poverty pole." No coal or artificial or natural gas was in use, no electric lights, telegraphs or telephones—Potterville (a) Miner's Journal.
