The Southern Evangelists in Baltimore.

Rev. Saml' P. Jones and his family, W. Small, of the two Southern evangelists, arrived in Baltimore Saturday night, their first service the following afternoon at four o'clock.

Two hours before the time a great concourse of people gathered from all parts of the city, attracted by the fame of the two gentlemen, and by three o'clock Middle street in front of the church was crowded from curb to curb by ladies, gentlemen and children, patiently awaiting the sun and blinding dust of the opening of the doors.

At half-past three the front doors swung back on their hinges and a solid stream of human beings poured into the building, rapidly filling the four thousand seats. In less than ten minutes every available place was occupied, and three thousand remained on the outside.

Shortly before four o'clock Mr. M. J. Maxwell, of Cincinnati, the superintendent of the evangelistic meetings, stepped to the front of the pulpit. He said: "We want you all in singing. If you don't know what you are singing, say any thing you know; you won't interfere with us." Under his leadership, and with Rev. Warren Nicholas at the organ, the congregation rose and united in singing "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

When Rev. Mr. Jones appeared before them a great hush came upon the audience, and there was a little interruption to his remarks which continued over an hour. The following are sample extracts of the discourse:

"The world goes to church with you, and you go with it to the theater and to the progressive churches. It goes with you to prayer meetings, and you both will go to bed together if you don't take care. Everything was all right before they drew the line between Mason and Dixon's line, and there was a big fight. God draws the line and says to the Christian, 'You come on this side,' and 'You come on that side.' If I can draw any such line in Baltimore we will get up the biggest fight that has ever been known here, and every such player has got to go in and fight on the devil's side. When Peter ran over the devil who was carrying off a young girl member of the church, who died at a dance, and said, 'Here, you are carrying off a Christian!' the devil replied, 'Yes, but she is in my territory.' In my life as a pastor I never had a dancer or a card-player in my church that was not a member, and he shot and kill them, and if any such get mad and leave they will leave room for those who can be influenced. There is a good deal of looking at you, my friend. I have been as careful about my feet as I have been about my heart. Don't go to bar-room. Look out for the byways of sin. Look out for your feet. Recently sixteen persons joined my church with a cold in the head, and as eternity. The next night twelve out of that sixteen were at a dancing party. If I joined church and look at it right to dance, I would commence on the same night, and get through with it. [Laughter.] I would want to go through with it. Our church don't forbid dancing, exclaims one. Which is your church? All the grand churches of the land are against it. I would not go to a church that would forbid dancing. I would not stay in the rotten I tell thing long enough to get my last. I would run out bareheaded. [Laughter.] Don't let your feet take you to a progressive church party. The same day that Jesus took the black and the gambler and not the participants of a progressive church party is forewarned. [Loud applause.] But, trading church member with you, like a scientific game? Yes, you are a scientific blackleg. That is calling a spade a spade, and you are like that kind of talk. People that play progressive church would stay in Heaven six months. They would be rambling for each other's covens [Laughter]. Nine gamblers out of ten come from no so called Christian homes. Generally they are here, clever gentlemen, and they allow your boys to learn gambling at home, and then you, in a hypocritical old game round be, wailing their fate.

And sensible, intelligent persons in the crowd, stand in the front hours, and agree into uncomfortable seats to listen to such balderdash as this. People who believe this kind of rant is pleasant to a Divine Being, must have a poor opinion of the dignity of the Almighty. A very common place must be disgraced with such words.

Our Washington Letter

From Our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, May 5, 1886.

The President's prospective marriage, and the probable retirement of Secretary Tamm, are the two topics of the moment during the week. Mr. Cleveland's visit to the White House is the more so. Very few persons have ventured to touch the faithful question to him, and those who have seen so courageous have not extracted any satisfaction from his answers. I am anxious, however, to say that Mr. Tamm will be greatly disappointed if he is not able to resign his position. The only apprehension that his friends now have is that he will not leave his work at the Treasury Department. Frank Vaughan, who has been here during the week on his recollections of slavery, said among other things that he had not seen any migration for his race. The negro could not find it in the present, and that white people. He thinks by the way, that President Cleveland is a very brave man. He had recently in a letter to a friend, while in office, the President, stated that he treated other office holders in the District. He was brave enough to invite Mr. Douglas and myself to his residence, thus rebuking the timidities I will not say cowardice or prejudice of his predecessors. Whatever Mr. Cleveland may be, he is not a knave and he is not a coward. Mr. Douglas's father and that he was a Republican, and would not all be enough to make a Republican President in 1888, but he honored manliness whenever he found it, and he had courage to stand up for the rights of the White House.

The President's afternoon handbaskets are followed by hundreds on the appointed and every day the White House is full of visitors. The rooms are still in winter dress, the smaller house cleaning over communicating until the season is far advanced. The number of bride couples among the crowds who admire the furniture and draperies of the historic mansion is large. The President is stylish, well-to-do young people, who are enjoying the view of the old tell-tell red box carried by the average maid.

The President's plan, for patching up the White House at an expense of $500,000, is a very interesting subject. The President's plan, for patching up the White House at an expense of $500,000, is a very interesting subject.

The first serious objection to this novel scheme is that it practically destroys forever the historic character and the venerable antiquity of the ancient mansion, which has been the residence of a country, has become, as we well know, probably, as any public building in the world. With the removal and alteration the present beautiful southern front disappears. The new building, with its beautiful grounds, of the river and the hills, is a very interesting subject. this session, the Senators have discussed tariff and listened to a speech on prohibition which is there was either temperance or a far if necessary. Before the tariff debate was sprung in connection with the tariff bill, Senator Bank wanted free ships if they carried the mail faster than American vessels. He contended that there was no patriotism in trade, and he if General Lee were living and kept a store in Richmond, with General Butler next door to him although Butler was never a favorite with the women of the South, if he would sell calicoes one-half a cent a yard cheaper than General Lee, he would ruin General Lee's business in less than six months.

The Senator from New Hampshire, Mr. Blair, who talked temperance to the Senate, is best known through the great Educational bill which he introduced and introduced. In speaking on his proposed constitutional amendment, prohibiting the manufacture or use of alcoholic liquors as beverages, he said, whenever the general welfare was imperiled by the use of intoxicating or impeding evil, it was the duty of society through the agency of the Government to enact and enforce laws to restrict or destroy that evil.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

The County Commissioners met in special session on Friday last for the purpose of closing the accounts of the Collectors who are required by law to settle before the 1st of May. Owing to the inability of several to pay the full amount due from the time for settlement was extended to May 11th, when all will be required to close up.

Henry Watson was awarded contract for rebuilding of bridge over Mill Creek, near Perryville.

The Clerk was directed to give public notice that there is a vacant school building in St. Mary's Perville Seminary, St. Mary's City, Md., to be filled by appointment of the Commissioners, and that said appointment will be made at the regular June meeting. Applicants must apply to Rev. John Squire, School Examiner, for examination.

Reignation of Samuel B. Grant, Constable Third District, was accepted.

A number of claims were examined and passed, and ordered to be paid.

The Susquehanna Bridge Completed.

The last spike was driven in completing the great B. & O. bridge over the Susquehanna on Monday afternoon last. The bridge will be ready for trains to cross in a short time. This bridge is said to be a piece of the most skillful engineering and magnificent structure in the country.

"Suspected."

We commence the publication of a new story in this issue of the MIDDLE JOURNAL which will run through several numbers, by the popular writer, Barrett Sylvester. The story will be found intensely interesting, and those commencing the first chapters will not fail to read it through.

Roses.

The volume of business transacted last week by the Dingle & Company exceeded its six previous weeks during the entire season. The mail matter received was enormous, and the amount of postal note, money orders, checks, etc., amounted to many thousand dollars. Monday of last week was the best day of the season for remembrances for orders, while Tuesday was the best Tuesday in its history. The latter is a day upon which, as a general rule, less mail is received, owing to the reaction after Monday—West Grove Independent.

Decoration Day.

Rev. I. Jewell pastor of Rising Sun M. E. Church will deliver the memorial address at Rose Bank Cemetery on Decoration Day, followed by Comrade, Rev. Elvin Kirk who will also deliver an address on that occasion. The singing will be by a select quartet accompanied by Prof. Will on the cornet.

Large Sale of Gurneys Hair.

Elwood Balderton, John Balderton, S. Morris Jones will dispose at Public auction on 4th day, 10th of 4th month, a large lot of Gurneys and Jersey hatters, on the farm of Lloyd Balderton, near Vinegar Hill. J. C. Hindman will call the sale. This sale will present a splendid opportunity to secure a cow of the finest quality latter stock.

Look out to Whom You Sell Cigars and Tobacco.

Once again and in answer to another batch of inquiries from different parts of the state, as to the "New Tobacco bill," we would say that the bill was passed by the last legislature, and became a law as soon as it was signed by the Governor, which was just after the adjournment. Under this law dealers are forbidden to sell cigars, cigarettes and smoking and chewing tobacco to all under fourteen years of age, unless they bear a written order from parent or guardian. The penalty being a fine of from $10 to $50, or imprisonment for from five to thirty days, if it is American.

Ice Cream.

While receding in our "easy chair" after the "labors of the day" (if you will) on Saturday, at a quarter of 6 o'clock (we like to be accurate in detail) a rap on the door summoned the servant who was handed a neat paper parcel with the compliments of Mr. E. D. Johnson. On examining the "brown paper parcel," it was found to contain the most delicious ice cream, for which kindly remembrance we hasten to acknowledge in the most graceful manner, and extend thanks for the delicious treat. Individually, we are not partial to ice cream—we like our cream "hot" as the English say, and the best end of a pint is as much as we can get away with when it is "right good."—The absurd was of that kind—but you should have seen the janitor of this institution smoking his triple mouth and praising the triple delicacy. This paragon of cream is certainly better than the mother's side who was providentially absent on the occasion, and her half was appropriated by her mother, the most ungrateful personification of the "brown paper parcel," though inside out and every vestige of it was consumed by a process, but not new, is unsurpassed by any detergent yet discovered. Mr. Johnson's new departure" is opening an ice cream parlor promises to prove quite satisfactory.

Mr. L. O. Cameron, contractor and builder has just entered into a contract with A. L. Dryden, for the erection of a grain warehouse 60 x 26 feet, a hay warehouse 96 x 32 feet, and a new barn, each with and elevated road for coal at the new B. & O. Railroad crossing near North East. Mr. Cameron will begin work about the last of the month—Cecil News.

Mr. Clinton Jackson, of Principio Mills who conducts the milling business since his father's death, under the old firm name, of E. J. Jackson & Sons, is doing an increased volume of business since the mill has been supplied with new roller machinery. Mr. Jackson informs that the new process manufacture of flour gives general satisfaction.

Fish.

The present season has been one of the most prosperous fishing seasons in many years, especially for herring fishing about the mouth of the Susquehanna. These fish have ranged from 10 to 25 cents per hundred and are large and fine this season. Last spring and the spring previous to last the herring were quite small and inferior in quality, though abundant in quantity. Havre de Grace appears to be the great central market for fish, the boats landing them there from where they are shipped to the city markets. Large numbers are also taken by hand and farmers who put up their supplies for family use.

Shad have been quite largely shipped from the above point, and generally from $15 to $15 a hundred. On the Port Deposit side of the river shad have not been plentiful, and have sold at a considerable advance on these figures.

On Monday and Tuesday last a run of shad was reported, and more were taken than formerly.

Mr. Geo. O. Garay of the North East River, gave the Minkus office a friendly call on Monday last. This was our first meeting with Mr. Garay, who is a young man of pleasant address, with an earnest honest face.

At the recent election in Anne Arundel county for or against local option or license, the prohibition ticket was defeated, the majority in the city by the "Ancient Sowers" river, inclining to the belief that the hair of the dog's tail is good for his bite; that the best way to promote temperance and sobriety is to drink a little whiskey. They will lean better while in the city. In Garrett county the prohibition ticket carried by a small majority.

It is singular that some people will go away to the city to have their hair cut, and be trimmed and dressed, and pay more for it than they can get the same work done at home, with better care and attention. Wm. M. Stroz, barber and hair dresser, formerly did work in the city and hasn't forgotten how to do it where he now is, at the old style supportive haircare store, Rising Sun.

The temperance women of Calvert and vicinity are requested to meet in Friday's Meeting House at Calvert, 5th Mo. 8th, at 2 o'clock P. M. to select a committee appointed from the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Oxford, Pa. to organize a similar organization at that place. The meeting will be held at the Temperance Union of any religious belief.

The third large run of herring (the "Dog wood run") for the season took place in the Susquehanna river last Monday morning. The fish were larger and of better quality than ever heretofore taken in these waters. All the hauling seines captured the fish in immense numbers. The low prices prevailing however, was not remunerative. The nominal price for herring on Monday was ten cents per hundred. Shad bringing from $14 to $16 per hundred. Many thousands of herring on Monday "struck" the fishing and smoking, and the quantity of pickled and dried herring will be large. The herring are much larger in size and finer in quality than those of last year or the year before.

The Farm.

FARM MISCELLANY.

Thin your potatoes out to a single stalk in a hill if you wish to have large tubers and but few small ones.

The manufacturers of oleomargarine owe to a yearly profit of $5,000,000, and the aggregate profits of those who sell the concoction for what they are or as genuine dairy products, vastly exceed that amount.

Let us all work together to protect the birds. The agricultural press is in a unit in favor of such protection. We want the help of every farmer and every farmer's family. The ladies can and will disseminate the wearing of feathers and plumes. The boys can stop the robbing of birds' nests and the killing of young birds. We want every farmer to put up a sign warning every "sportsman" and bird killer off the farm.

The Rural New-Yorker says:
"As we sit writing, we are men going by with measure that cost them 75 cents per load. One-third is shavings and it must be hauled three miles from the stables where made to the place on which it is to be used. These men both use tobacco, it costing each not less than $6.00 per year, and yet either takes or reads the paper because "it costs so much, and he can't afford it. And then neither believes in 'high-pressure farming,' as he calls our method. We wonder if the time will ever come when farmers will spend half as much to feed their brains as to minister to a depraved appetite."

Feed for Work Horses.

Twelve quarts of oats a day is as much as any horse needs or can digest for work on a small farm. With this feed horses waste only half the hay usually fed. He will do better and do more work in a small amount of hay than when given all he will eat. Calf feed with meal is the most economical, and horses will do the hardest work on this food and keep in better condition than on oats. And if plenty of bran be mixed with the grain very little hay need be fed. Horses will well do on oats and bran, or on clear oats.

THE GARDEN.

Asparagus Culture.

The seed is sown in rows, about as thickly as onions; cultivated by the hoe and weeded by hand in precisely the manner required for "bed" of onions. The plants are in a better order for transplanting at one year old than older.

The land for asparagus is prepared by plowing in a good dressing of manure, harrowing and rolling; the furrows are then struck out with a plow 3 feet apart, going several times in the same furrow, and finally shoveling out the furrow by hand so as to plant the roots six or eight inches below the general surface after the furrows are filled. The furrow is dressed with some fine compost and the roots planted a foot apart.

The next year the asparagus will require cultivating and hoeing to keep in order, but by no means crop it till the third year. For the first or fourth year from seed. It should receive a moderate dressing of fine manure every spring, well worked in. The object in planting the rows so deeply is, to give the harrow a chance to work over the roots without injuring them.

The cropping and marketing of asparagus needs a good deal of care; it should be cut every morning before breakfast, and tied up immediately in bunches.

Asparagus is one of the most wholesome and delicious of all vegetables; it comes in early in spring that nothing compares with it except southern produce, and its culture and popularity are yearly largely increasing. It is so easily transported and bears carriage so well that a good deal of it is produced four miles or more from market.

The best kind for cultivation, and which has proved so far superior, and now entirely superseded the old Giant's variety, is "Cover's Colonial."—Norfolk Farmer and Trucker.

Horticulture.

Preserving Peach Trees from Mice.

It is said that a nail driven into peach and apple trees near the ground, will keep the lower branches free from the pest from the iron that does the work.

There is no harm in trying it. It will do injury if no good.

The above is from the Practical Remedy. Don't say so French says. We tried the soil years ago. The horses killed the trees all the same; and in chopping them up afterward, having forgotten about the nails, we ruined a good one. The earliest and most effective method of preserving peach trees from the attack of borers, is a smallish size of wire or rye straw placed round the base of the trunk bound at the top with twine or three or four common wrapping twine, to keep the straw in place all that is required to protect the tree for a year. First scrape the soil away round the base of the tree till the large, branching roots are uncovered; then place the straw neatly round the trunk, secure it at the top with the cord, and draw the first back in place to keep lower end of chest of straw in place. No worm will ever injure a peach tree thus protected. Pouring, boiling mud, heaping dirt on coal ashes about the root of the tree is lost labor. The straw is a sure protection for at least a year. We have tried it often with measure that it is a surprise against the peach tree borer.

Carp Culture.

[From the Practical Farmer.]

REQUISITES TO SUCCESS.

First is the pond. The manner of construction, etc., is illustrated in the several elsewhere. Second, the stock must be of the best and purest varieties. The fishes can be had free (a small number, say a dozen or two) by application to the Secretary of U. S. Fish Commission, or to the different State Fish Commissioners. These applications may be made any time during the year; they are placed on file in the order received. The distribution is made in the months of November and December of each year. Carp are also now for sale by a great many persons. But we would recommend caution in this matter. Purchasing fry, as in nearly all new enterprises, irresponsible and dishonest men have engaged in the business. Do not deal with every man who advertises. First inquire regarding standing for honesty and square dealing, then as to varieties, and purity of the stock, for it is said that some of the varieties being disseminated are worthless, and any investment in them is thrown away. Trace the stock to reputable sources. This is the case of the fish. The fry will stand in little to live up in almost any pond one can find. Keep out predatory fish, as catfish, blue gills, perch, etc., or any water food to frequent the pond. Destroy all snakes and vermin so far as possible. If one wishes to experiment the fish, it will be to begin feeding them when young. To do this, place the food always in the same place; do this at a stated time each day, or every other day. Give only so much as they will eat up clean. Be careful to avoid over feeding.

WHAT TO FEED AND HOW.
It has been thought that the carp is a purely vegetable feeder. This is to some extent an error. It subsists not only upon the vegetation to be found in the pond, but also takes insects as it comes to it in the form of flies, larvae, etc. A little cracked grain of any kind baked and thrown upon the water will do well. Boiled corn meal is excellent, boiled potatoes are good. These things if to do domestic, as we have said, for carp become perfectly domestic and will feed as regularly as pigs come to the trough. If it is desired to feed simply for growth, and not as pet, fill a bucket with water and stir in a little meal, or tight, weight and sink it in the pond. The soaked feed exudes from the sack and is sucked in by the fish as readily. It is good food and the carp thrive on it amazingly.

PLANTS AND TREES FOR PONDS.
All ponds should be supplied with water-cress and grasses. Willow and Nymphe seem the most natural and best. The seeds of these varieties are sold by persons in the business of supplying the fish. Trees about the pond are not objectionable, yet ought not to be planted so profusely as to prohibit plenty of sunlight on the water. The cultivation of fish, neither should there be so many trees as to fill the bottom of the pond with leaves to decay and produce noxious gases, to the injury of the fish. But a proper amount of shade is beneficial at times, and does beautify and produce coolness, to the injury of the fish. And as they do beautify and produce coolness, to the injury of the fish. And as they do beautify and produce coolness, to the injury of the fish. And as they do beautify and produce coolness, to the injury of the fish.

RAPIDITY OF GROWTH.

Having heard some wonderful stories about the growth of these fish, we asked Mr. Hartlett how large those specimens in Mr. Frost's pond had become. The answer was that he had never seen one weighed 15 lbs. This fish is now in Humboldt Park, Chicago, placed there by Hon. Charles Sherman, and is still growing rapidly. Another measured 22 inches in length, and weighed 15 lbs. It is not claimed, however, that this wonderful result is always attained. Much depends upon the temperature of the water, feeding, etc. Where the water is cool, growth will be slow. Indeed, the carp is a warm-water fish. It is well to remember that in fish culture, as in anything else, it is useless to expect to realize something from nothing. Just in proportion as the necessary experience and care are used in the construction and maintenance of ponds, will be the success and the profit.

We herewith give a diagram of a spawning pond and hatching vat for carp, such as Secretary Hartlett recommends for general farm use. The figure below represents the main pond, which may be the one elsewhere described. Leading from this is a small water way into a hatching vat, as shown, made of plank 16 by 10 ft. and 2 feet deep, and on the same level with the pond. At spawning time, which is from May to the latter part of June, in Illinois, cut evergreen boughs and throw into the pond about its edges where the water is warm and shallow. The spawn which are extruded from daylight until ten o'clock in the forenoon, are deposited on the evergreen twigs. Remove these boughs every morning, or every alternate morning, and lay them in the shallow vat or tank, putting others in their places. The egg hatch in five or six days, when the branches can again be placed in the pond as before. Thus continue during the spawning season, and at its close you have all the little fish in the tank, the big ones being by themselves in their own pond. In this way there is no loss from the fry being eaten by the parent fish. This is an important requisite to success in the rapid propagation of carp. We do not think that this arrangement has ever before been given to the public to do, though we presume Mr. Bartlett has instructed many of his inquirers how to do it.

"I'll pay extra for one of them. You see, I've got two tickets, and I've got one checked on your ticket, and I'll enclose them. See?" "Yes, but I haven't any ticket." "But I thought you said you were going out in the train?" "So I am; I'm the conductor." "Oh!" He paid extra as usual.

Chewing gum is made from chicle, a gum which comes from a Mexican tree, the fruit of which is called sapote. The fruit is at its best in the autumn and is delicious in flavor. The gum is collected by tapping the tree, runs out freely, is molded in the sun into chicle, hardening in the sun, and is brought to the market on pack notes, each made carrying about three hundred pounds. When the natives start out on a long journey they always provide themselves with chicle in small pieces, and use the piece of three for chewing the gum the month is kept moist and the desire for more is kept alive.

Modes and Materials For Men.
By the New York Times.
The New York Times.

Special Correspondent of the Midland Journal.

Business is brisk at the furnishing centres.

Despite a lull at the strongholds countless lines are turned to the mood of masculine modes.

Samples of over one hundred figures, in checks, plaids and mixtures of excellent weaves products of American looms, are sent out from a manufacturing stronghold of the metropolis.

The styles in vogue at the old Canal Street Stronghold, for dress as well as for general service show special features in symmetry and finish.

Suits for business and pleasure are cut in the sack or cut away styles and closed with three or four buttons, as taste or fitness may suggest.

Price Albert and four button cutaway frock made from narrow neck screw, wide waist, long sleeves, diagonals, of medium length, bound with medium bias, a continuance in the fashionable territories of popular favor.

This assumption is confirmed from facts and fabrics shown at this house, which in the face of rival ship, is highest authority, on the subject of latest subject of masculine styles.

The four prevailing styles of coats are still probably remain many years more. They are the sack, the frock, the four-button cutaway, and the dress coat. All of these belong to the outfit of almost every gentleman, no matter whether he mingles in the fashionable set or not.

Even the little innovation of white waistcoats seems ephemeral. In the early of the last photographs of the Earl of Rosebery, who stands at the top of the modern social ladder and is married to the heiress of the Rothschilds, he appears in a plain black dress suit, with a black waistcoat and no ornament, not even a watch-chain.

Dress trousers, like all other trousers, are being made a little wider with a slight spring over the instep. Broad bands down the side are not so much used in fashionable circles as they were. A few rows of waist-tache are still adhered to by a few swells who belong to military organizations and carry a sword in their drawing-rooms and on their person.

The one garment, however, upon which the attention and interest of fashionable young men is concentrated this season is the waistcoat. Fancy waistcoats are the fashion in London. In the most elegant establishments in New York and Philadelphia fancy vests of the most wonderful patterns, are being made up for the fashionable young of the town.

All coats are snug and symmetrical, even cutaways, and hardly any smooth surface cloth is used. In overcoats, black diagonals are also fashionable for spring. The spring overcoat is now worn short.

The bag top coats, which have been in vogue the past winter, will be used to some extent for traveling.

Stripes and quiet plaids, are the favorite patterns for material for trousers this season, though many of plain color will be worn. Trousers are cut wider than ever before in ten years.

Neck scarfs in dark and natural shades will be the popular conceit for young men.

Collars with turned points are dearer though connoisseurs predict a return to the turn down collar. The turn down collar is a favorite with linked stripes for summer service.

In shirtings the widest latitudes are allowable. Checked and colored varieties with shield fronts, are shown, and constitute a pleasing contrast to white fabrics with neck, cuffs, and ruffled linen or in Marcella bosoms, in current vogue.

To cap the climax of style, 1. are forced to admit. The high hat is the dressy thing and is a pocket to wear now, even with a sack coat, though there is nothing like the soft crowned, chapeau in felt or Panama for summer service. The latest Derby is round-crowned and has a close rising brim.

Style still adheres to colored hosiery and low patent leather shoes will be as fashionable as ever for summer, though buttoned gaiters for general wear remain the favorite style. Some of the most fashionable men are going back to square toes and pointed toes said to be quite laudable in the circles in London, as they should be in any community or country.

To Messrs. Hackett and Co. we are indebted for such strong points of style as will enable mothers to appear their small boys elegantly, at prices, which seems a satire upon former figures, which if they were managed it, is a mystery; though this is one of the secrets of that subtle essence we call success.

SINCEY EARLE.

Doing Too Much.

American women try to do too much. A woman in moderate circumstances, who does her own work, must afford as many ruffles on her children's clothes as her wealthy neighbor can afford to put on her own.

It is economy for women to do so, unless they prefer to give their money to doctors and nurses, and suffer all the while if they would until they are worn out. There will be suffering and loss of money and time and perhaps no hope of future strength. Buy the things which will make your work easier, and in order to save your time and strength, make plain clothing to let.

I have been in rooms, sitting-rooms especially, where whatnots and mantelpieces were filled with many strange things without utility or beauty; bedrooms arranged in the same way, on bareness and mantels, so that the labor of dusting such a house became a dread and burden.

It is a matter of health too, to have as few surfaces as possible on the least dust. If women would sit down and resolve to lessen their hours of labor, they would soon find the unnecessary work that I know.

one woman who makes a dozen pies a week, and sometimes twice. Short-cakes made with cream and baking powder, eggs and butter, with fresh fruit or good canned fruit spread between are good substitutes for both pies and cakes. Plain cakes made in a large and cut in blocks, are better than the most expensive ones. Rugs in bedrooms in summer make the cleaning easy.

In a few hours the rugs can be gathered up and thrown on the grass, hung on the line, dusted and the dirt swept and mopped quickly; the sweeping and mopping altogether not taking more than one-half hour to a room. Then the full carpets can go down late in the day, unless the house is very warm, or there are double floors. There are many ways in which time may be saved, to a busy and overworked woman more leisure may be of some things—recreation, health or social life—Good Housekeeping.

The Householder.

Workmen of rich yellow silk are in vogue the past winter, will be used to some extent for traveling.

An Old Citizen Speaks.

Mr. J. M. Norris, an old resident of Rome, Ga., says that he had been badly troubled with Kidney Complaint for many years and with Ecema for three years at times could scarcely walk and had tried many remedies without success, until he began taking Electric Bitters and in a single day his hands and feet with Bueken's Arnica Salve.

This treatment afforded him great relief and he strongly recommends Electric Bitters to all who suffer with Kidney Complaints, or need a Blood Purifier. Satisfy Dr. Kirk.

Temperance.

A GOOD TEMPERANCE STORY.

No Tooth. No Tooth Ache.

"You can't make a man sober by Act of Parliament."

So they said I thought it over. It didn't seem to me a self-evident proposition.

"You might as well try to cure the toothache by Act of Parliament."

This made me reflect. I had been troubled with the toothache. Worried by it. Maddened by it. Kept off my work, my meals, my happiness by it. My life was falling in consequence. My temper was gone. My mind was going. I was invited to try various remedies.

"Stop it!" said some.

"How?" I inquired.

"Fill the tooth with gold!" they explained.

The tooth was thus primed, but the toothache went on.

"Clear it out," said others.

"How-how!" was my agonized exclamation.

"Cleanse the blessed thing," they told me.

I did. I got it inspected. Illuminated. Syringed. Fumigated. Made beautiful with camphorated chalk, bath brick plate powder, and sorbion. No good.

"Give it a rest on Sundays," said a clerical friend.

I tried this. Even on Sundays there were some bons fide twinges on Mondays it was as bad as ever. What was I to do?

"Be extra careful what you let in to it," advised a civic functionary.

Nothing could I succeed my care. Three magistrates certified the good harmless, excellent character of all I put in my tooth.

"I feel safe," I said. Not for long. I soon felt sold. The results were disappointing. Distressing. Excruciating. Somehow the certified application lost its virtues the moment it got inside.

"Hold a drink of water in your mouth and sit on the fire till it boils," urged a knowing one.

I began to think this was the only remedy. At last I took counsel of a fanatic.

"Try the Parliamentary cure," said he.

"What's that?" said I.

"Have the tooth out; a short Act will do it."

This seemed drastic. It would leave a gap in my social system. I should miss an old friend. The tooth had a vested interest. I hesitated. I took courage.

"Let the operation cost what it may, it must come!" I cried.

So I summoned the dentist.

"I am ready for the Parliamentary cure," said I.

It took a strong pull. It was done. The tooth was gone. No was the toothache. I was happy.

Once more I reflected. Extrication cures toothache. I had never realized this before. No tooth, no tooth ache. This is strange but true. And yet you can't make a man sober by Act of Parliament!

Let us see. No tooth, no toothache. This is strange but true. And yet you can't make a man sober by Act of Parliament!

Let us see. No tooth, no toothache. Granted. No drink trade, no drink. Eh, what! is that a fact? No drink traffic, no drink. I never thought of that. No drink no drunkennes. I see. A man with no hind legs doesn't kick. He is quiet. If a man can get nothing to drink, he doesn't drink. He is so. An Act of Parliament can make him so. By whitewashing the public house? Not quite. Sanctifying it on Sundays. In big places only? Scarcely. What then do you want Parliament to enact? PROHIBITION—Irish Temperance League Journal.

Ann Hall and Mary Mahan, two aged inmates of the Almshouse, died at that institution last week. The latter had $61 in her possession at the time of death, $60 of which was in notes upon State banks, which had been issued from 1854 to 1862. Samuel J. Key, one of the Trustees of the Almshouse, left the notes at the Elktos Bank for collection, and it is believed that, notwithstanding their age, the officers of the bank will be able to obtain good currency for them.—Drumner.

Homes On Wheels—Hills to Homes.

Strikes are in Statue quo.
The traffic in trucks is tremendous.

Tenements are turned topsy-turvy to small purpose.
The class to whom change is the annual order, have small progress, the fashion of their fitting; yet it takes them out of the groves where from the fashions which are a bar to present progress.

Kalamite, fresh soap and lamp-urns work wonders in the line of cleaning.

Wall papers of eclectic patterns, pleasing possibilities to those who are forced to figure closely in furnishing.

All goods and chattels are cheap at the marts where wags makers buy their wares.

Carpets, Linoleum, Oil cloths, Mattings and druggets of infinite variety of American manufacture are purchasable at a price which fairly covers the ground of original cost.

Carpets slightly worn should be thoroughly shaken, beaten, or rejuvenated, by one of the Steam processes in vogue. Rip the middle seam and turn the localities to the center. If the sevice be slightly defaced, a border may be supplemented which adds materially to style and service.

Spots may be removed from carpets on the floor, by washing with brush and soda and with soap and water.

Furniture too, should be cleansed with warm soap and dried quickly and polished with an oiled cloth.

Window panes and mirrors washed with ammonia water and polished with soft chamois, retain their brilliancy for weeks.

Domestic draperies of all classes and contents as well as the more substantial elements of home building are furnished at very low figures.

In view of the possibilities of national industry it seems poor policy to deprive the pluck and prowess of the people, who are the very bone and sinew of the corporate capitalist. It is one of those perplexing enigmas of enterprise which only time can solve.

Magnates of the Baltimore and Ohio R. It seems in no wise appalled by the present condition of things. The processes of their proposed triumphal entries into the metropolis are being discussed and perfected by certain powers behind the throne which is greater than the throne itself.

That the results of their push will make a revolution in the interests promoted by increased facilities for traffic and travel is fact too firmly fixed for cavil or question; and it is just possible the wise winners may find fresh pastures for consolation.

At all events an enterprise favored by the press and the public is sure to win the right of way to the very front and forum of national success.

SIDNEY EARLE.

Your fur-trimmed cloak, or gracefully draped woollen coat, or gown as fresh and uncreased and free from moth holes next fall as when put away, if you will adopt the following plan, and you will not have to sneeze over Persian powder, or be reminded of headaches, past or future, by the odor of camphor.

Put on the sheet on the garment with fresh newspapers, beating them up with long sticks where they come in. Air, shake, and hang the garment well, button the band, and hang it over a coat-hanger or section of a barrel hook, wrapped with flannel or hang the bag with it. Lay it smoothly on the sheet, and wrap and pin it, being careful to leave no crease for a month to creep in, especially where the string comes out. Let it outside and hang up. If the insect room is scarce, the summer dresses may be hung over it as the stiffness of the paper prevents creasing.

The prettiest ornament for the outside of a house in summer is a well-kept garden box, and when fruit comes it may be taken inside, and by adding a few plants for those that may have exhausted themselves. In a thing of beauty and a joy all through the winter. An ordinary box as long as the window is wide, and about a foot wide and deep, will answer. The bottom of the box on the window ledge, and is held in place by a hook on the under side, which closes into a ring on the sill. The outer side is supported by a wire or small chain running from a ring at each corner up to rings at the side of the window. The box may be covered with strips of mossy bark, or with oil cloth in set patterns in imitation of tiles, or in two and three colors. Kensington ivy, air-plant, and simplicity are pretty for trailing over the sides, with ferns, geraniums, begonia, and helodella inside. Sweet alyssum and candytuft make a setting for the cypress flowers. It is a good plan to have some plants in pots sunk in the earth, so that when they are done blooming they can be removed and others put in their place.

Visitors to London remark how the grim, smoky old city is brightened and made charming by the bright, clean window gardens—Homes Weekly.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS.

A full school present. Elijah Reynolds made a statement concerning his failure of appointment last fall to school No. 7, Fifth district. It was referred to commission or Kirk. Two petitions were presented from patrons of Westman school. One requested a change of trustees and the other the appointment of a new teacher. The teacher petition was referred to the trustees of the school, and the trustee petition to commissioner Biddle. A petition from the principal of the North East school was presented for the division of the school building into rooms and received and read. The change was deemed desirable and referred to commissioner Kirk. The trustees of school No. 3, and some of the patrons appeared and requested a change of location and a new building. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Present—Messrs. Griffith (President), Cooley and Daigane. It was decided to assess the property of the Philadelphia branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and on Tuesday next the matter will come up for final determination.

The Clerk was directed to request the trustees of the poor and the school commissioners to furnish the Board with an estimate of the amount they will require to meet expenses during the coming year. It is expected there will be a large increase in the levy for schools.

Mr. Cooley was authorized to have a public travel the road laid out some time ago from the Port Deposit and Rowlandville road to Columbia depot at Ottovaro Junction, and also to have a survey made of the proposed road near Colons, beginning near Tooh's lane and running in a westerly direction past a number of houses in that location, now without public entrance.

An additional allowance of $200 was made to the Town Commissioners of Chesapeake City for repair of streets, and $500 to the trustees of the poor for repairs to the Almshouse. Dr. John H. James was appointed sanitary adviser to the board, with authority to report to the Legislature, ex-officio a Local Board of Health.

Thomas E. Lee was appointed constable of the Third district. Twelve bids were received for the county bonds. H. J. Ransing, president of the National Bank of Delaware, Wilmington, was the highest bidder for blocks No. 1 and 2—$18,000; and Jacob Tume the highest for block No. 3—$27,000. Mr. Tume was the only bidder for the entire debt, and claims that on the average he is the highest bidder and entitled to all the bonds.

County Meeting.

Thursday, May 13, 1886. At a meeting held in the office of Job Haines, on Thursday, H. J. Haines was called to the chair and Job Haines was appointed secretary. The object of the meeting was for the purpose of establishing a cemetery near Rising Sun, and it was generally agreed that a tract of land belonging to Mrs. Ann T. Kirk, lying west of the town would be the most eligible and the best location for the purpose.

Subscriptions covering nearly one-half the cost had already been obtained, and on motion, the chair appointed W. T. B. B. Robertson, Thos. J. Wilson, Dr. G. S. Dore, Saml. L. Reynolds, and Job Haines, as a committee to solicit further subscriptions.

Also on motion, H. H. Haines and Job Haines, were appointed to draft a plan of organization for the Cemetery Company, to be submitted at the next meeting to be held at the same place: 22nd inst at 6 P. M., at which time also, the Committee on subscriptions will report. The meeting then adjourned.

CONVINCING BAKING.

The Pilot Town Public school, Mr. A. G. O'Connell, principal, will on Friday, at its usual annual convocation to Black Barren springs—Mr. James A. Risher has been appointed superintendent of Bethesda S. R. via John A. Dunn reported. Mr. Robert Smith pastor of said church is preaching a series of Temperance sermons which cannot fail to awaken some interest in the minds of all thoughtful citizens in regard to this important question. The school which at Pleasant Grove chapel is partly, in which about eighty grown persons hold under way and the interest increases. Mr. Lewis Wright has been selected as the superintendent, Miss Maggie Comings's Truce, and Miss Mary Brown, Sec. Miss Ada Brown and Mr. John Starnett Librarian—Miss Maggie Blair of Summer Hill has not yet returned from Philadelphia but is expected to be in the city. Miss Clara James who is splendidly holding the 1st win while Miss Maggie is away.

Evco.

On Monday May 10th, the children and friends of Mrs. A. B. Moore, of the 8th district of this county celebrated her sixty-sixth birthday by giving her a surprise party, in which about eighty grown persons besides the children took part, some coming a great distance. The friends met a short distance below the house and then marched in, her little grandson Willie Moore Jr. leading the march.

It was impossible for all her near and distant friends, all of whom he dearest to him were read, in which he spoke beautifully of the home of his childhood—the old friends, all of whom he loved, to have been and mingled with some more. The letter was enjoyed by all, and the absence of the writer was very much regretted.

All present seemed thoroughly to enjoy themselves socially, and the festivities were continued until the wee small hours, every one seeming loath to turn from such social enjoyment.

The table groined with the good things the kind friends brought with them and offered for blocks No. 1 and 2—$18,000; and Jacob Tume the highest for block No. 3—$27,000. Mr. Tume was the only bidder for the entire debt, and claims that on the average he is the highest bidder and entitled to all the bonds.

The Webster Wagon.

Mr. Rigold Gracon handed us a package in a large envelope. He held a number of similar ones in his hand which he gave to the company standing about the post office. The package contained a number of cards containing the likenesses of pretty girls with the cut of a "Webster Wagon" on the back. In each package was also a large card with a colored likeness of a pretty girl and on the reverse of the card "Wm. Gracon, Agent."

It was plain enough that the busts of the little beauties on the smaller cards was emblematic of the motto "a thing of beauty is a joy for ever." But the device on the larger cards represented different actions. On one was a dancing girl, on another a girl playing on a banjo, and so on. These characters represented refreshment and gladness. To dance has always been a sign of rejoicing. Indeed, ladies, with a they saw post Pharaoh's floundering in the sea, danced and sang and played on their symphonies. But why should these girls be so merry on aforsaid cards?

Ah, we see it plain enough now. The Webster Wagon, where ever it is introduced spreads joy and gladness among the people. It isn't such hard copy as hard after all.

Shed Kill by Dogs.

On Saturday week dogs got amongst John P. Evans' sheep killed for and wounded two or three others. One of the killed was a Cotswold buck. His son Amos Evans, shot one of the dogs dead while on the sheep and wounded the other. The dogs are reported to belong to persons living in Port Deposit, and were brought out to the house of a neighbor near where the sheep pastured. The sheep were appraised before Esquire Taylor and valued at $50.

Heavy Storms.

Many parts of the country have been visited by destructive storms within the last two weeks, notably central Ohio and last Wednesday the old town of Winchester Va. was the scene of a destructive hail storm and cyclone. The angry elements did not confine their wrath to this continent but central Spain was also the point of a most terrific cyclone that destroyed much property and killed a number of persons. We have had our share of rain but the winds have not visited this section.

Loss of a Jersey Cow.

Lloyd Balderson lost a Jersey cow, worth $75, by one of these accidents which should never occur or be allowed under any circumstance to take place. On Monday, Ed. Boyer a colored man employed as a hand on the Balderson farm, was driving the cows and one of them attempted to run beyond the point he desired her to go, when he attempted to turn a stone, (so he says), ahead of her, to turn the animal. The stone, however, struck her just back of the horns in a vital spot, and the cow fell and expired almost instantly.

Fried Balderson has a splendid herd of Jersey cows, and grazing in the pasture they are a sight worth walking several miles to see.

Run Off.

The sensations in this chapter of accidents have not been very great this week. Dr. Siler had a run on the road between "Korner Ketch" and Farmington, upset, broke harness, spilled medicine, but the greatest damage sustained was the loss of his machine case which had some steel spilled on it, that destroyed the case. The run off of Haines Job's team with wagon on Friday last brought the folks on Quaker street to their front windows. The horses ran as the "Squire Taylor's" shop where the lines caught in one wheel and brought up the runaway with a short run. The wagon turned over and horses were secured. No damage.

Presbyterian Sociable.

The West Nottingham Presbyterian Congregation have a social society or organization for the dual purpose of cultivating the social amenities and raising a little fund for the benefit of the church in some branch of its various needs. The last meeting was at the residence of Mr. A. L. Dwyck of this town on Thursday evening last week. About 70 members with a few invited guests, assembled, enjoyed a good lunch and a pleasant intercourse for a few hours, with their pastor, Rev. S. A. Gayley, D. D. in their midst, and the promise of the morning dew which leaves its vivifying effects in the thence of the harvest. More of similar intercourse is the great need of country life.

Decoration Day.

Captain Samuel Post, No. 461, Dept. of Pennsylvania, A. R. will meet at their Hall, Pleasant Grove, at 7 o'clock A. M. Saturday, May 21st for the purpose of decorating soldiers graves. Will arrive at "Bloyd's Grave yard" Fairfield, 9; Zion, Fairfield, 9; Penn Hill, 11; A. M.; Brittain, 12; M. Eastland 11; Baptist, Rock Springs, 2; and Bethesda, B. J. church at 10 o'clock. A. M. Memorial services will be held at each grave yard. The ministers, friends and neighbors of the several churches in the are respectfully invited to be present.

Contributions of flowers are earnestly requested. Bring them to the grave, or meet us on the route. J. T. Green, Commandant.

Sudden Deaths.

George Bromfield, who farmed for Samuel Harrow, was found lying on the kitchen floor on Sunday morning about 6 o'clock, by his wife, in a dying condition, expiring in a few minutes after. Mr. Bromfield rose about an hour before apparently in his usual health, and was taken with an apoplectic fit it is supposed, which resulted in his sudden death.

A little daughter, 2 years of age, of Mr. & Mrs. George Balderson died quite suddenly on Sunday last, the child had been in declining health for some time, but her parents had not noticed that a change for the worse had appeared, and her sudden death on Sunday morning was a severe shock to the bereaved parents.

Mrs. Caden, wife of George W. Caden, station agent at North East, died suddenly Monday.

Accidents.

Two weeks ago Albert Taylor, one of the carpenters employed in building the Haines house, was shot in the shoulder-blade fractured by a beam falling upon him.

Jerry Naybaw, a colored boy while at play one evening last week with some other boys in the same building fell through between joists and was a good deal frightened and somewhat injured.

One of the carpenters also was let down by walking off on a board which tilted and fell him down a story, not injured. Another carpenter working on same building "got lost" at a fellow workman, and threw his shoulder-blade fractured by a beam falling upon him. The tragedy appears imminent about that building, but lack of denouement. Moral—Be a little more careful.

The Eureka Mower.

Passing the Messrs. Bird's' shop a few days ago, we stopped to examine a Eureka Mower standing on the yard, and if we had grave to mow that is the machine we would pick on to do the work. This mower has the team hitched directly in front, and cuts a six foot swath. One horse walks in the grass and the other on the edge of the swath. The machine is driven back and forth on one side of the field, like a hill side plow. On the return swath, the mower slips under the grass, that is leaved or tramp-up by the horse in making the previous cut. It is directed by a little friction and a small switch requires no more power to cut than a foot force with a side draft mower. Neither mower or horse pass over the cut grass which is left loose, in a half receding position, and dries without being trampled or spread. For perfect work and speed this mower "will take the cake."

From Our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, May 17, 1896.
Although the work at the Capitol has been a quiet one, both Houses of Congress have made fair progress in business. The Senate is presently holding a Saturday session, but the House of Representatives as a rule is in session on Saturday night, and frequently holds a Saturday night session that is postponed to no later than 10 o'clock on Sunday morning.

Appropriation bills are taking precedence of everything else, as the session is drawing toward its close. One after another the House is disposing of them. The Army has been provided for, also our consular and diplomatic, and now the general Pension bill is under discussion. The number of persons added to the pension roll under it is about 250,000, and the amount of money involved will be about $25,000,000. And then they have been trying to make a new Cabinet office. Representative McCracker, of Kentucky, came to the hearty support of the measure for enlarging the powers and duties of the Department of Agriculture. He argued that the United States, the great Agricultural empire of the world, should elevate the department of the Government. It was then that was a Secretary of Agriculture to look after the great questions that might arise for the benefit of the farmers of the country.

Mr. Beckenridge, of Kentucky, opposed the bill. Coming from an agricultural state, he would do anything he could to aid the agricultural interest, but the more he examined the bill, the more it appeared to him that it would do no good. He protested against any legislation that would place the farmers in a class by themselves. When the Secretary of Agriculture came to sit at the Cabinet table he would be an agriculturalist and would become a politician. The Secretary of War was not a soldier, the Secretary of the Navy was not a sailor, the Secretary of the Interior was not an lawyer or a pensioner, nor a homesteader. These gentlemen were politicians. They represented states, they represented influence, and when the Secretary of Agriculture sat in the Cabinet he would be a gentleman who represented a certain section, and who had certain political influence and weight. It was the heavy burden of taxation which kept the agricultural industry from moving on. This was the clog which kept it from advancing. Agriculture did not need to be covered with a Cabinet officer. Take off this burden, remove this clog, and agriculture would be crowned by her own exertions without asking favors from Presidents or Cabinet officers. All agriculture wanted was a few, uncorrupted, unobscured chance in the great battle of life.

Mr. Beckenridge's remarks were received with applause, and then Representative Weaver, of Iowa, arose to favor the bill, holding that it would give labor a status it had not yet enjoyed. Labor, he said, was organizing for a great civil contest with monopoly, and it had a right to be heard in every council that might meet upon its condition, and upon the use of power and respect that must be given it.

During the week with a large delegation of New York citizens were visiting Washington, they called upon the President in a body, as is the custom of almost every party and every body that comes to the city. Including the ladies there were about two hundred in the delegation, some of whom were the President's old neighbors and knew him well. One of them tried to venture upon the matrimonial subject in which Mr. Cleveland is supposed to be interested. The only answer elicited from the big, reserved bachelor, was that he regretted the President of the United States did not have the same rights and privileges as an ordinary citizen.

Mr. Stanford, the wife of the millionaire Senator from California, has just completed arrangements for the erection of an aged woman's home, which is to be located in Albany near her old residence in that city. The structure is to cost $150,000. It will be to be placed under the care of a religious body. Senator Stanford probably receives more respect in his country than any man in Washington. Indeed, he has been so much persecuted by people calling on him in order to reside in his fine home with some of the great and notorious, that he has been compelled to take some measures to guard his privacy. There is now a wandering order at the Stanford mansion that no one is to be admitted to an interview with the Senator without first stating his business to one of his subordinates. His principal annoyances have been women, although it is the women of famous array and many offices.

Maxims.

[A cynical friend furnishes us the following "maxims":]

What this country needs is to consume no beer and more salt than it does.
What this country needs is to have more farmers' gunpowder and less lawyers' gold in the halls of legislation.
A rascal can go into a bank and borrow as much money as he wants for no honest man has to spend five hours hunting the town to get some one to identify him.

"Lovers Four and Maidens Five: A STORY OF THE ALLEGHENY MOUNTAINS," by JULIUS CHAMBERS. Price 25 cents. Philadelphia: Porter & Coates.

This love story of Cresson Springs reawakens all the old fascination that a visitor to that beautiful mountain resort has experienced. The weird and romantic localities are described in a gay and vivid manner; many of the lost tales of Alleghenies have been rescued from oblivion and upon the pretty threshold of a love tale a valuable collection of historical and topographical information has been grouped. A really novel idea is the foundation of the story. Four young men go to Cresson to pass a summer month and they find four charming girls. At first there is harmony; but a fifth girl, entirely outside the group, presents a slight but upon her and succeeds in disorganizing the party to such an extent that only one couple marry as they originally hoped. Some admirable pictures of clever young women are drawn, and several keen hits are made regarding the society young woman, who manages her parents. It is in every way a clever and remarkable volume. One can enjoy it as a sitting. The fine original pictures by J. B. Sward, N. A., and F. C. Schell give it additional value. Many crop epitaphs are scattered through the pages that would well repay quoting, but it would be unfair to our readers to deprive them of the pleasure they will derive in picking out the bright sayings for themselves. To them we say: "Fall to, you have an enjoyable feast before you."
